Council Tables Sunday Amusements Ordinance

BACKERS OF MOVE PLAN NEW BATTLE AT OCT. 16 SESSION

Measure Introduced by White and Fight Against It Is Led by Millican; Move for Second Reading Beaten, 20 to 12.

LIMIT IS PLACED ON POWER OF KEY

Mayor Expected to Veto Paper Restricting Him in Selection of Council Committees for 1934.

Prospects for an open Sunday for Atlanta were thwarted temporarily Monday when council declined to place an ordinance providing for Sunday amusements on second reading and then voted to table it.

Vote to table was 20 for and no record was made of those against the measure, since 20 was a clear majority of council's 29 members.

Mayor James L. Key was limited in the choice of his committee members, when the Joseph E. Bernan ordinance was approved by a vote of 18 for to 14 against.

Attention of council was called to the necessity of immediate relief from sewer nuisances caused by Atlanta sewage, in a formal report filed by the sewer committee and referred to the finance committee for consideration.

City Attorney James L. Mayson prepared the report, which cited the urgency of removing the disposal plant now located on the banks of Peachtree creek, and warned of the situation in which Atlanta would find itself if damage suits now filed and pending seeking abatement of the nuisances in DeKalb county areas go to trial and courts find against the municipality.

White Points to Majority. Councilman John White pointed to the city-wide referendum on Sunday amusements in support of Sunday recreation. He hit "sun-bath bathing suits and the pocket flask" and pointed out such evils with "innocent and wholesome sports and Sunday movies."

"If I had to take my chances with either, I'd take Sunday recreation," he said. "I would prefer for my son or my daughter to visit places of recreation where wholesome surroundings can be had to automobile frolics where pocket flasks are the recognized order of events. The city of Atlanta is violating the law every Sunday in keeping golf courses, tennis courts, swimming pools and other facilities open. The people who patronize them are not violating the state law."

Move Illegal, Says Mayson. City Attorney James L. Mayson told the council that the ordinance which would allow Sunday football and basketball, and which provided that if one section of the ordinance was found

5 PER CENT SLASH IN STATE BUDGET EXPECTED TODAY

Action by Talmadge Anticipated Following Report of $5,000,000 Drop in Tax Collections.

A new slash in state appropriations is expected to be ordered today by Governor Eugene Talmadge following a report Monday by State Auditor Tom Wisdom which showed tax collections for the first nine months of the year more than $5,000,000 under the same period for 1932.

Although no official announcement came from the governor, who is director of the state budget, it was reported that the reduction is certain to be 5 per cent and may be as high as 10 per cent. Already appropriations have been reduced 25 per cent for the year.

Mr. Wisdom submitted his figures to the governor without comment but was in no way to be taken as an executive during the day and is expected to have another conference with Mr. Talmadge this morning.

The auditor's report showed that the general fund from which all state departments, other than those receiving specially allocated taxes, receive their maintenance, is 26 per cent less than it was in 1932.

The report showed that thus far the state has collected a total of $17,619,330 for all sources as compared with $22,028,649 during the first nine months of last year and $24,600,887 during the same period in 1931.

The general treasury has received only $5,714,471 this year compared with $7,446,138 in 1932 and $8,487,909 in 1931.

Because the tax from gasoline and kerosene has increased somewhat this year, special funds would probably show an increase over last year, but it is not for the fact that the governor ordered a reduction in the price of automobile license tags.

The figures show that while the decrease in total specially allocated funds has been $3,077,155, the major portion of this or $2,650,229 shows up in the revenue lost by the reduction of the price of automobile license tags.

It is said that numerous departments of the state government have anticipated a further reduction in their appropriations and have gauged their expenses accordingly, while

YOUNG STRIBLING IS NEARLY DEAD, DOCTORS REPORT

Cannot Live for 24 Hours Unless Great Change Occurs; Temperature Is 105 and Pulse Weak.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Attending physicians said late tonight that W. L. "Young" Stribling "won't last 24 hours unless he can sleep soon or unless something else happens."

Dr. A. P. Kemp, the family physician, said he and Dr. A. R. Rozer, the surgeon who amputated one of the fighter's feet after a collision between his motorcycle and an automobile yesterday, had just visited the patient and found his condition "extremely critical."

The heavyweights' temperature at midnight was given in the bulletin as 105.3-10, slightly higher than the 9 o'clock reading.

"His heart beats are irregular," Dr. Kemp said, "sometimes missing as many as six in a minute."

"Our hopes now are that we can get him to sleep," the physician said. "We have given him two doses to bring on sleep, but they have left him only groggy and cloudy mentally. Unless he can sleep soon or unless something else happens he won't last 24 hours."

Earlier in the night Dr. Kemp said Stribling "still has a fighting chance to pull through."

Injuries Undetermined. The elder Stribling said his son had a scar on his stomach which caused him concern. He said physicians had been unable so far to determine the extent of the wound.

The father said it would be 24 to 48 hours before the full extent of the boxer's injuries were known.

"Pa," as he is known in boxing, has managed his son in the ring throughout his career, which carried him through more than 200 professional battles. He started him with gloves when the Stribling family was in the "Four Grapes" in vaudeville.

"Ma" Stribling likewise has been a "major" factor in W. L.'s successes as a fighter. In his earlier years she was his trainer and her maternal kiss was always bestowed on the son just before he stepped into the ring.

Today "Ma" and "Pa" took turns at the bedside—just as they had done in his corner time and again. They didn't feel like smiling as they did when he was in a tough spot in the ring, but they did when the injured fighter called a muffled "Hello" as they came into the room. He never has been unconscious.

On the same floor Young Stribling's wife is convalescing from the birth of a third child—a son, with whom the boxer was photographed Saturday. She was wheeled in to see him last night after the family physician informed her he was hurt.

"Ma" she called. Doctors told her he needed quiet, so she left the room, but returned a little later when he asked: "How's the baby?"

"Fine," she replied, and then left in tears for her room.

Today she was holding up well, "Pa" said, "she's the mother."

"Baby" Stribling, a fighter in his own right and his brother's pal, was en route to Macon by automobile from Greensboro, N. C., all other members of the family are here.

Stribling's physicians were somewhat more optimistic over the fighter's condition than his father.

Dr. A. H. Rozer, one of the attending doctors, said after an examination today "he is certainly holding his own and may be gaining."

The doctor was photographed Saturday, but "he will recover if there are no internal injuries yet undiscovered."

They said X-ray photographs showed his left hip bone had been crushed.

New Attendance Mark Seen for Fair As Great Throng Flocks to Opening

Most people like to see cotton going up. Here you see cotton (candy) going down. The market was extra good too, as a glance at pretty Miss Edna Earl Cook and Miss Reba May Cook reveals. They were among thousands of happy visitors at the Southeastern Fair Monday on opening day. Photograph by George Cornett.

Inspired by huge attendance on "School Day," the official opening day of the 1933 Southeastern Fair, the exposition executives were ready to begin work in earnest today to bring up a new attendance record.

In spite of lowering clouds and the menace of rain the school children poured into the fair ground from hither, thither and yon and fairly stormed the exposition buildings and the rides and shows of the great midway. The first-day crowd was estimated by some to be as high as 100,000 people.

Today will mark the first presentation of the society horse show, which has attracted entries from some of the biggest stables in the south and from the army posts at Forts McPherson and Benning. Some of the best horses ever bred in the south will vie for prizes in the different classes, and all will be ridden by smart riders.

The horse show is one of the special feature attractions for today and Wednesday and will be broken both in the afternoon and evening.

"School Day" at the fair is an attraction in itself. It is well worth a visit to see the armies of children scampering back and forth between the attractions, shrieking and laughing, eating and dancing, enjoying everything to the fullest possible extent.

The midway shows were forced to give extra performances, while the concessions and refreshment booths were taxed to the limit. School teachers were on hand to preserve a semblance of order while many parents came along to enjoy the shows with the youngsters.

Storm Damage Repaired. Through the efforts of President Mike Benton and his corps of aids all damage done by the unexpected storm late Sunday afternoon was repaired and all the shows and tents restored to normal condition.

The attention of downtown Atlanta was attracted in itself. It is well worth a visit to see the armies of children scampering back and forth between the attractions, shrieking and laughing, eating and dancing, enjoying everything to the fullest possible extent.

MAN, WOMAN DIE IN MOTOR WRECK

Lucius J. Harris, 53, of 631 Linwood avenue, N. E., assistant general cashier of the Georgia Power Company, and Miss Ruby Dawson, of 300 Ponce de Leon avenue, were killed instantly Monday morning when the auto in which they were en route to Atlanta overturned seven miles south of Gainesville, Mrs. Marie Hester, of Atlanta, also a passenger in the car, escaped injury and summoned aid.

The victims were pinned under the wreckage when the car left the highway on a straight stretch and both were dead when the machine was lifted from their bodies. Mrs. Hester said Mr. Harris was driving, lost control when blinded by lights of a passing car.

Mr. Harris was injured internally and Miss Dawson, who was 35 years old, escaped injury and summoned aid.

Bandits Get $20,000 In Holdup of Bank

BROOKLINE, Mass., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Six bandits lined 20 clerks and customers against the walls of a branch of the Brookline Trust Company, disarmed a policeman and escaped with almost $20,000 today.

Bank officials believed that more money would have been taken but for the daring act of Miss Margaret Buckley, a clerk at the bank, who ducked below a counter and sounded an automatic alarm.

AMERICAN KILLED BY STRAY BULLET FROM HOT BATTLE

Officers, Barricaded in Havana's Finest Hotel, Surrender and Troops Kill Ten of Them While Flag of Truce Flies.

Most of the dead were officers who resided in the National hotel late today after a day of terror and heavy fighting.

The troops shot down 10 of the officers after they had fluttered a small white flag of truce from the shell-pitted hotel.

A survey of morgues at mid-evening showed that more than 100 persons were dead. Additional dead were being brought in steadily.

Some were soldiers and others appeared to be civilians, possibly victims of their own curiosity as they rushed to the scenes of firing.

Hundreds of wounded were treated in hospitals, which were rapidly exhausting their medical supplies. Many of the wounded were expected to die.

The shot so excited the troops that they shot 10 officers in their tracks. Wild scenes followed before the men quailed down and the officers were started off in bunches for their dungeons.

JOHNSON APPEALS TO END STRIKES

75,000 in Pennsylvania Remain Out Despite Administration Plea.

By the Associated Press.

Attempts to revise unsatisfactory wage and working conditions provisions of the NRA codes, with the strike only as a last resort, were urged on the American Federation of Labor by William Green, president, yesterday.

Nevertheless, numerous strikes erupted throughout the eastern part of the country.

The coal situation was the most widespread and troublesome. A new soft coal code went into effect today and General Hugh S. Johnson issued an appeal, backed by the "authority of the president," that the United Mine Workers accept it and return to work.

On receipt of the message from President Johnson, Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, ordered more than 75,000 strikers in the western Pennsylvania coal sector to be back to their jobs not later than this morning. He said interpreted the latest stand of the H. C. Frick Coke Company as meaning it "virtually" recognized the union. Some Ohio miners also returned to work.

Candler Field Army Air Unit To Fly Over Big NRA Parade

Atlanta's great NRA parade Wednesday, which bids fair to be the greatest the city has ever staged, will get a swath through the air as well as over land, it was revealed Wednesday when Major William L. Plummer, commanding the 487th army air squadron, announced that the 17 officers of his unit would participate in the procession, using every available army plane at Candler field.

Meanwhile, Alderman Farris A. Mitchell, chairman of city council's special parade committee, and Adjutant General Lindley W. Camp, grand marshal of the day, announced plans for the great procession have been completed and that 50,000, most of them marching, are expected to participate in the big event, with additional hundreds of thousands lining the streets looking on.

General Camp Monday ordered army reserve officers and national guard officers not participating in the procession to assist in directing the formation of the great parade, which will move promptly over Peachtree, Whitehall and Mitchell streets at 11:30 a.m. These officers will be stationed along Baker, Harris, Peachtree and West Peachtree in charge of the formation wounded troops at Camp Columbia, outside Havana.

Shooting General. Meanwhile, the shooting became general in various parts of the capital. The heaviest firing appeared to be in the Vedado district where many Americans reside.

Americans joined with many Cuban factions in urging United States Ambassador Sumner Welles to intervene and land United States marines. He said that move was up to President Roosevelt.

The outbreak of firing at dusk spread fright through the already terrorized city.

The Cuban warship Patria drew up in front of the hotel and from the harbor sent shells screaming into the

Nurse Who Aided Stribling

Miss Frances Jones, pretty Macon (Ga.) graduate nurse, is credited with having saved the life of W. L. (Young) Stribling, Georgia heavyweight boxer, who lost a foot in an automobile accident at Macon Sunday. She was riding in an automobile at the scene of the accident. building for numerous direct hits. A truce was called shortly after noon and the Red Cross removed the bodies of the dead and wounded, taking the injured to hospitals.

White Flags Ignored. The truce ended at 3 p. m. with the resumption of firing by the besieged officers. After 20 minutes, however, two white flags were hoisted at the hotel, carried by two officers. Despite the gesture, desultory firing on both sides continued. A delegation called on United States Ambassador Sumner Welles at the embassy and pleaded that he order the marines landed. He replied that so far apparently no Americans were being killed except by accident and that he could not take the step. Intervention then was urged and Welles replied: "Only the president of the United States can order intervention."

Welles, however, arranged the truce during which a peace conference with delegates from the officers was held. The soldiers kept their big guns trained on the hotel during the truce.

Fighting began shortly after 6 a. m. The incident which precipitated the fighting remained obscure.

The officers, prepared for the crisis, had plenty of rifles and ammunition.

Americans Endangered. The attack sent bullets flying through the city's streets, endangering lives of Americans and other residents. During the brief truce, 34 Americans residing in the buildings near by hastily evacuated them for spots of greater safety away from the front. Lotspeich was shot while leaning from a window to observe the fighting.

The bark of scores of rifles was heard constantly through the morning, interspersed by the heavy roar of big guns on land and at sea. The heavy cannonading started at 10:40 a. m., at the height of a heavy tropical rain. It continued for five minutes and then the gunners settled down to a slower, steady bombardment.

Field guns and mountain batteries sent shells pounding into the hotel. The first shots screamed overhead into the bay, but as the gunners got the range they made direct hit after hit. The damage to the luxurious hotel was tremendous. The casualties were high.

The officers returned the fire with machine guns and rifles, wounding more than a score of soldiers, sailors and civilians.

The troops threw a heavy cordon about the district, refusing admission to surrender; the others demanding their men fight until the end "as soldiers and gentlemen of honor."

H. P. Taylor, the American manager of the hotel, and his three assistants, Americans, withdrew safely from the building last night going to the Presidente hotel. Taylor said the officers warned them when they went out for dinner last night that they had better not return, indicating the officers expected or planned to start trouble.

The firing spread rapidly through Havana, turning the city into a great, chaotic battlefield. The movement was sudden and general.

It apparently was inspired by various distinct factions opposed to the Grau government, rising up at the same time and shooting at soldiers after their victory over the officers at the hotel.

Twenty soldiers were reported killed by snipers from roofs while they were placing the officers on a ferry to take them to prison. The report could not be verified.

One rumor in a rumor-mad city said that ABC radicals—a political organization supporting the ousted regime of Dr. Carlos Manuel de Cespedes—started tonight's shooting in an effort to force Grau out and bring American intervention to restore de Cespedes to power.

The United Press correspondent telephoned the general staff to inquire what was being done to suppress the shooting, and an officer shouted: "For God's sake hang up—we are here defending ourselves."

A number of automobiles speeded down O'Reilly street past the All-American cable offices where this is being written, shooting wildly as they went. The chase was terrific.

One report said eight civilian on-lookers also were killed at the National hotel gardens.

In a wild taxi ride from the United Press office to the National hotel and return this correspondent ran into one street shooting affray after another. It was impossible to ascertain exactly what factions were participating.

At 4:30 p. m., soldiers and students went to search the Palace hotel, as snipers there were active against soldiers. Several persons were injured in the search, including Jesus Lopez, a newspaperman who was broadcasting news from the hotel radio station.

The capital became relatively quiet after about two hours of firing in many parts of town. Government authorities close to President Grau said the shooting from automobiles evidently was by ABO members.

Damage to the National hotel in the bombardment was estimated at $230,000.

The United States battleship New Mexico was expected to reach Havana shortly. It will lay off shore without entering the harbor, officials said.

U. S. STILL WITHHOLDS ORDER TO INTERVENE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(UP)—Despite the bursting of artillery shells in Havana, Secretary of State Hull remained determined tonight to allow Cuba to work out its political destiny without benefit of United States marines. The navy, however, moved to strengthen its forces near Cuba. The secretary issued an implied warning to Americans in Cuba to avoid needlessly placing themselves in danger. If, despite personal caution, Americans are menaced, a fleet of 20 United States vessels, now ringing Cuba, stands ready to protect them and a total of 8,000 marines can be made almost immediately available.

While President Grau San Martin made a desperate bid for power today by sending artillery shells to drive some 500 army officer opponents from their stronghold in the national hotel in Havana, Representative Hamilton Fish, republican, New York, called on the Cuban president in a statement here to yield to a coalition government. Only thus, he said, could the Cuban problem be solved.

Despite the increased seriousness of the Cuban situation and the killing of a United States citizen, Hull declared that the United States government contemplated no change in its Cuban policy. As previously stated by him, that policy is to protect American lives in Cuba, but not necessarily to protect property.

Land Inheritance Bar Put on German Jews

BERLIN, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Germany's small farmers became a "privileged" class today when Chancellor Hitler signed a revolutionary land inheritance law whereby Jews are not permitted to inherit, or farmers to sell or divide lands among heirs.

The law defined an "inheritable" farm as a tract including arable and forest land not exceeding 310 acres and possessed by a capable farmer. BRUNSWICK ROUTE 27 REPORTED IN U. S. of the ten-million dollar federal fund. The program is now before federal authorities in Washington awaiting their approval. No announcement concerning detailed projects has been made either from Atlanta or Washington.

Do your children CONCEAL THIS THING from you?

MANY parents never realize that their children are constipated. Sometimes the child avoids the question. At other times a mumbled or hurried answer is given. All this is due to shyness. But, remember, this is never the child's fault. It is always the fault of the parent.

Get your young child to take you into his confidence. Find out why he dreads the subject of constipation. Ten to one it is the great fear he has of laxatives.

The distressing action of common laxatives is a very real fact. Even adults learn to dread it. And that is why the news about Feen-a-mint is so welcome to takers of laxatives the whole world over. Feen-a-mint is in the form of a minty chewing gum. All you do with Feen-a-mint is to chew it.

Then the saliva dissolves the laxative and carries it right along. The action inside the intestinal tract is as smooth and regular as Old Mother Nature herself. Ask your doctor about this safe and scientific Feen-a-mint. Non-habit-forming and economical. No increase in dosage. Pleasant to take. No griping. No mean feeling afterwards. All druggists have it—and that positively means all.

Of all the ways in which tobacco is used the cigarette is the mildest form

YOU know, ever since the Indians found out the pleasure of smoking tobacco, there have been many ways of enjoying it.

But of all the ways in which tobacco is used, the cigarette is the mildest form.

Another thing—cigarettes are about the most convenient smoke. All you have to do is strike a match.

Everything that money can buy and everything that science knows about is used to make Chesterfields.

The right home-grown

GRAND OFFERS PRIZES FOR OLDEST AUTOS

Believing that the combination of the $3 tag license for the state of Georgia and the new deal has brought out many extremely old cars, Loew's Grand theater will give four prizes for the oldest cars to come to the Grand theater under their own power next Friday, between the hours of 9 and 11 o'clock. The prizes will be $10 for the oldest and three $5 prizes for the next three oldest, and the theater will have a representative at the theater to check the serial numbers, which is the evidence of the age of the car.

The contest is in connection with the showing of "The Bowery," the time of which was in the heyday of the life of John L. Sullivan, Chuck Connors and Steve Brodie, when the automobile was just beginning to be one of the wonders of the age. The picture features Jackie Cooper, Wallace Berry, George Raft and Fay Wray, and the famous jump off Brooklyn bridge and a prize fight with John L. Sullivan as one of the principals are two of its many highlights.

Competing cars will report to the Grand theater first, then to The Constitution building and then back to the theater, where further examination and description will be recorded. One of the stipulations is that the car must bear a sign reading "The Bowery, Loew's Grand."

The aquarium seemed a bit cloudy after I replenished it with pond water the other night. It seemed to be something more than mud that the tadpoles stirred up. A bit of the water on a slide resolved into a veritable primitive picture under the microscope. There were animals that seemed to fill the entire field of vision, yet they were invisible to the bare eye. There were innumerable micro-critters there, such as Daphnia and Cyclops, skittering merrily on their courses just as if they were in a lake instead of a fed drop. Occasionally a "slipper animalcule" crossed the field. The books all call them Paramecium, and define them as members of the ciliated single-celled animal phylum known as Protozoa. This word means literally "first animal," and it must be admitted that the name is excellent. No more simple animal can be imagined; one cell, instead of the billions at work as your eye and brain register this article, yet it performs efficiently the vital functions of living matter.

Here at last came what to me is as interesting a manifestation of life as can be found. Notice that I do not say whether it is plant or animal. I cannot tell. There are the animal characteristics of motility, of food-taking, digestion and excretion; yet within the hyaline body are corpuscles of green material, identical in composition with the chlorophyll that tints the leaves of trees. Cut down the light that is pouring through the lens system; there it is! Two flagella, one before the organism, and one trailing the cigar-shaped body. These structures place this form in the flagellate class of the Protozoa. There, you say, he has fell down and called them animals. No, I haven't, for I have excellent authority for placing them with the animals in a group called by the more exclusive name of Protista. And Euglena is the name of this one.

Far back in the story of the living things, we think that creatures like these stood at the forking of living matter—protoplasm, if you please—into plant and animal life. Are we right? I must leave it to men who are better equipped to say than I am, for unraveling these mysteries is the work of generations, and not mere lifetimes.

Another animal appears under the lens. This time there is no room for doubt. It is one of a third class of one-celled animals, and the story of this creature must be saved for tomorrow.

people of other ages have recovered and established a better understanding of life which made for progress.

WHY HOSPITALS USE A LIQUID LAXATIVE

The dose can be measured to the drop, and the action controlled. Pills and tablets containing drugs of violent action are hard on the bowels, and frequently habit-forming.

Hospitals and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. And the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. Do you know why?

A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to take "a double dose" a day or two later.

The wrong cathartic may keep you constipated as long as you keep on using it.

Can Constipation be Overcome?

"Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say thousands who have followed this sensible medical advice: 1. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Take the dose you find suited to your system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until the bowels are moving regularly without aid.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, used in this way, has the average person's bowels as regular as clockwork in a few weeks' time. Why not try it? Some pill or tablet may be more convenient to carry. But there is no "convenience" in any cathartic taken so frequently that you must carry it wherever you go!

How to Choose a Laxative

In buying any laxative, read the label. If it contains one doubtful drug, don't take it. If you don't know anything about a preparation, ask some doctor about it. The temporary relief you get from some synthetic, habit-forming cathartic may irritate the kidneys.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescriptional preparation with nothing to conceal. Its ingredients are stated on the label. By using it, you may avoid all danger of bowel strain. You may keep the bowels regular, and comfortable. You may make constipated spells as rare as colds.

How many dimes and quarters are spent on "popular" laxatives! How quickly they count up, as you use more and more of these habit-forming helps! A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin would save you money—and bring you real relief. And it is perfectly harmless, perfectly safe.

A FRANK STATEMENT by the Makers of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

We believe the unwise choice of laxatives is the most common cause of chronic constipation.

We believe the use of crude salts, and powerful drugs in the form of pills or tablets is rapidly giving way to gentle regulation of the bowels with a liquid laxative.

We believe Dr. Caldwell's original prescription of fresh herbs, pure pepsin, and active senna is the ideal family laxative.

And we know it is a safe preparation for children and expectant mothers because it does not cause bowel strain, or irritate the kidneys.

OUR PENSION POLICY.

The 30,000 members of the American Legion who voiced ringing approval of President Roosevelt's declaration that every disabled veteran should be amply pensioned, but that no pension will be paid to any man merely because he wore a uniform, again stamps their patriotic sense of duty to the well-being of their nation.

The Legion has fought earnestly for liberal aid to those whose war service incapacitated them, but it has never asked that the doors of the treasury be thrown wide to both the deserving and the undeserving.

To pay a pension to every man who served in the armed forces of the United States would mean national bankruptcy.

The president pledges that every veteran whose earning capacity has been lessened because of service-connected disabilities will be cared for.

Certainly no right-thinking and patriotic citizen can disagree with his position that a man should not be pensioned merely because he answered the call of duty and returned unscathed.

A FINE CAREER ENDED.

Genuine sympathy for "Young" Stripling, clean-cut fighter and good citizen, in the tragic loss of his foot in a highway accident, will be felt throughout the south, with the earnest hope that he will win the desperate fight he is now waging for life.

It will not be surprising to those who have followed his career that this splendid young Georgian met the sudden ending of his career gamely and, despite the pain of his wounds, with a smile on his face.

That is the way in which, during his long career as a boxer, he has met reverses that would have crushed the spirit of one less hardy. Time after time he has fought himself to within reach of the pugilistic heights, only to have his gameness and skill count for nothing against opponents physically superior.

Through these disappointments, and a storm of criticism which has been proven unjust, Stripling never lost heart and when his accident ended his fighting career was again planning a fighting campaign.

Living and conducting his fighting in a clean manner in a sport which has been so often blackened by the conduct of those who engaged in it, this fine young Georgian has had an elevating influence on professional boxing second not even to that of Gene Tunney.

A good citizen, a proud and devoted family head, he has earnestly won the respect and admiration of his fellow citizens.

A TRIBUTE TO DEVOTION.

National Dog Week is, more than anything else, a tribute to the devotion that has earned for the canine the sobriquet of "man's best friend."

Whether of high pedigree or just a plain mutt, the love of a dog for his master "carries on" through thick and thin. His life is never too great a forfeit for the safety of the man, woman or child who is his master.

Kick him around, starve him, tie him up when he wants to be out romping, and his unselfish devotion flickers not a whit.

Hard, indeed, is the heart of the man who fails to respond to the smile of a baby, and equally soulless is the one who spurns the eager eyes and wagging tail of a four-legged friend.

It is fit that the world, in its Truth and Fiction.

Here is a curious coincidence, which may throw some light on the situation in Russia. There is in Moscow an English-language newspaper. It also circulates in America and is frequently used by writers and sociologists to keep abreast of events in the soviet union. The name of this paper is Moscow Daily News, and the editor is Borodine, the man who was sent out by Lenin to guide the Chinese revolution some years ago.

I know Borodine well and all the members of the staff of his paper which is housed in the same building as the office of the United Press under Mr. Eugene Lyons in Moscow.

Now, the Moscow Daily News gave a series of articles the other day about Magnitostroy, a center of the steel and smelting industry in Russia, and described how efficiently everything was run there; how immense progress was made, and how Magnitostroy was one of the greatest achievements of the soviet union. Curiously enough, Istevia, the official soviet newspaper, printed in Russian, also ran some articles on the same subject. But Istevia said that Magnitostroy was in a state of absolute chaos, that the workers there lived like cattle, that the most expensive machinery was deteriorating and spoiling for lack of interest and expert handling, in a word, that Magnitostroy was a disgrace to Russia.

Now it stands to reason that conditions at Magnitostroy cannot be wonderful and terrible both at the same time. One of the two papers is misleading its readers, and since it is inconceivable that an official newspaper will deliberately speak disparagingly of a phase of the national construction program, we must conclude that it is the Moscow News which gives an erroneous impression.

DAY BY DAY

In Georgia's History

One hundred and fifty-four years ago today the allied forces of the British and the Georgia militia defeated the Spanish and the Georgia militia at the battle of Milledgeville.

On October 9, 1779, that attacked Savannah and who retreated into South Carolina?

For the two best 20-word original answers to the foregoing question, Loew's Grand theater, co-operating with The Constitution, will award two prizes of $100 each to the winners.

The "Bowers" is a United Artists production, starring Wallace Berry, Jackie Cooper and George Raft. This picture starts a week's run at the Grand Friday.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

ONLY A FEW OF US KNOW HOW TO BREATHE.

Whereas, primitive savages and a few civilized persons whose brains have been added by physical culture, breathe more efficiently and have greater endurance than ordinary folk; and

Whereas, our chesty complex is unnatural and physiological and ought to be discarded along with the other afflictions of the past generation; and

Whereas, the habit of costal or chest breathing, common to all persons with quaint conceptions of physiology handicaps those addicted to it. Therefore be it

Resolved, that all who now wear the B. B. Club—and who doesn't?—should abide by the rules of the order.

The ideal of the B. B. Club is to free the diaphragm.

All chest breathers are belly bloaters. Belly breathing is not "deep breathing." It is only natural breathing.

The notice, in order to reap the greatest benefit from belly breathing, should start from scratch, with the assumption that what he or she already knows about breathing is not so.

You see, most popular knowledge of such things is derived not from the study of physiology, but from the teachings of all sorts of propagandists, charlatans, mail order quacks and "health" courses.

The diaphragm functions automatically but not involuntarily.

The untutored savage breathes freely and naturally with his belly and diaphragm; so you when you are anesthetized or fast asleep, the rest of the time the function of the diaphragm is inhibited or hampered by your bad education.

HOUSE CLEANING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The farm credit bosses are so wrought up about the failure of their organization to function that they are planning a nice little house cleaning.

Heads of at least two federal land banks are already marked for the sweepers. Their identity cannot be announced yet, but it would not be surprising if the broom started to work in the vicinity of New Orleans and St. Louis.

Also the appraisal personnel in other sections is to be dusted off and renovated.

OPPOSITION The truth seems to be that Henry Morgenthau has discovered some of his co-workers are not personally in sympathy with the farm credit act.

Their appraisal work has been the subject of severe inside criticism from farmers, senators and representatives. There is evidence that in some instances unduly low appraisals have been made.

It is a very delicate job to value farms for credit these days. There is no real market for the land. If an appraiser wants to be tough, there is nothing to stop him except his conscience.

SILVER

Inside negotiations have been going on between the United States, Great Britain and France on the silver question.

Our diplomats have put out feelers on the idea of the three governments going into the silver market in a buying campaign. Financial sources have been tipped on it. That is the leading reason why silver prices have shown a rising tendency lately.

The idea behind the move is to help restore purchasing power in silver countries. Also to help our domestic producers.

Some officials very high on the inside believe there is a chance that something may be worked out. A majority, however, is skeptical. Nothing can be done unless the three large purchasing nations agree. Right now it would be a problem to get them to agree on the matter.

NUMBERS

There is beginning to be some criticism of General Johnson among the administration big thinkers.

They are saying that perhaps he made a mistake in the choice of men who aided him in the NRA drive. They attribute the growing among industrialists to the fact that the Johnson regime is top heavy with labor sympathizers.

The second-guessers are convinced Johnson could have accomplished his purpose more deftly if the labor group had been less prominent.

The real motive for this new feeling near the top may be the fact that the big shots are getting cold on the NRA.

A movement is already under way to shift the limelight to Jesse Jones (R. F. C.). His credit and closed banks drive may have the center of the stage from now on. Johnson is being shoved back in the crowd. That is only natural. His work is nearly done.

FACTS Every person on the street these days whispers: "Well, what do you think of the NRA?" or "Why doesn't someone tell the truth about it?"

The truth has been told. People are forgetting about it in their impatience. Some part of the blame must be shared by overly enthusiastic leaders of the NRA who made wild prophecies as to what it would do.

The basic fact is that the NRA was a very necessary thing in its original conception. The codes sought for the larger basic industries were essential. These industries were far enough advanced to take codes. The disparity between their production volume and their working conditions (wages and hours of labor) was appalling.

Difficulties came when they tried to apply the same principle in blanket form to every little crossroads drug and grocery store. The little fellows were living from hand to mouth on the verge of bankruptcy.

The dissatisfaction aroused by this program obscured the real good accomplished by the basic program.

The bigwigs here know that as well as the man in the street. The credit drive is virtually an official admission of it. They are trying to save the little fellow by feeding him credit to meet his increased costs.

History will probably give the NRA a better deal than its critics do now.

NOTES

In connection with the prosecution of that gold hoarder in New York, you may remember that an attorney once told Harry Sinclair they couldn't put him in jail for what he did. He found out the attorney was wrong, but it was too late. Most lawyers here now agree that it would be unconstitutional to put a hoarder in jail, but they will not decide the case.

Some people seem to think the constitution itself is unconstitutional.

for himself the government would give the necessary care just as it would other citizens in the same position.

Three Principles. Here is the administration attitude on its relations with the veterans as outlined by Mr. Roosevelt:

First—"The government has a responsibility for and toward those who suffered injury or contracted disease while serving in its defense."

Second—"The fact of wearing uniform does not mean that he (the veteran) can demand and receive from the government a benefit which no other citizen receives. It does not mean that because a person served in the defense of his country, performed a basic obligation of citizenship, he should receive a pension from the government because of a disability incurred after his service had terminated, and not connected with that service."

Third—"If the veteran has not the wherewithal to take care of himself it is the duty of his community to take care of him and next the duty of his state and finally of the nation. It recognizes and appreciates the patience, the loyalty and the willingness to make sacrifices, shown by the overwhelming majority of the veterans of our country during the trying period from which we are beginning successfully to emerge."

To Increase Benefit. I want to talk to you about national unity. Let us look at it as a living thing—not a mere theory resting in books, or otherwise apart from every-day business of men. It means that we live under a common government, trade with each other, pay common taxes, give to and receive from a common protective government, and recognize national unity, to hold it above all else, seeing that upon it depends our common welfare, is just another way to say that we have patriotism.

Unity Essential. You and I have served in the World War know that we represented a United Nation in the time of danger to world civilization. But you and I know also that national unity is as essential to peace as it is in time of war. If this country is worth living in, if this flag of ours is worth living under, if our social order is anything to us, then this country of ours is worth defending every day and every year of the life of every individual one of us.

It is because I am unwilling to live myself or to have my children or grandchildren live, under an alien flag or an alien form of government, that I believe in the fundamental obligation of citizenship to the uniform of our country, to carry arms in its defense when our country and the things it stands for are attacked.

Enemies of Unity. But there are two enemies of national unity, sectionalism and class. If the spirit of sectionalism or the spirit of class is allowed to grow strong, or to prevail, it means the end of national unity and the end of patriotism.

Some people who visit us from other lands still find it difficult to credit a great nation with a government from many sources, a nation 130,000,000 strong, a nation stretching 3,000 miles from east to west, in all the great essentials of its civilization, a homogeneous people, not only do we speak one language, not only are the customs and habits of our people similar in every part of the continent, we have given a repeated proof on many occasions, and especially in recent years, that we are willing to forego sectional advantage where such advantage can be obtained only by one part of the country at the expense of another.

Class Danger. The other enemy of national unity is class. I believe that you and I are well aware of the simple fact that as every day passes, the people of this country are less and less willing to tolerate benefits for one group of citizens which must be paid for by others.

You have been willing to fight for the benefits of American life. You have been willing to live for America. You have understood that this is the very foundation of the Americanism for which you stand, in the Americanism of the future, in the Americanism of the past, in the Americanism of the present, and I swore allegiance when we became American Legionnaires.

For several years past the benefits of American life were threatened. The battle of 1930 was a battle for a new police station and $100,000 for libraries. A two-mill tax increase also is contemplated to provide for retirement of the bonds.

2. Referred to the municipal buildings and grounds committee a complaint by Alderman-elect Ellis B. Barrett that municipal employees prepared a petition to conduct a strike of the candidates in the September 20 primary, and authorized the committee to subpoena witnesses, administer oaths and take whatever other steps might be necessary to conduct the activities. Although the ballots were prepared in the office of City Clerk J. Henson Tatum, Barrett said that municipal employees were not to be any way responsible for the activities.

3. Voted a holiday after 11:30 o'clock Wednesday in order that municipal employees might participate in the NRA parade and visit the South-eastern fair.

4. Referred to the finance committee a proposal signed by 25 members of council to restore the salary of all municipal employees to the prevailing pay as of December 31, 1931.

5. Referred to the library committee a resolution by Councilman H. Parks Rusk asking that the committee investigate claims of J. D. Wilson, unemployed Atlanta truck driver, who he proposed the work relief program used in reforestation work by the federal government.

6. Authorized selection of a special committee of three from council to attempt to evolve a plan for erection of a new police station and passed an amendment by Councilman William G. Hastings asking $230,000 from the federal government for elimination of dangerous grade crossings.

8. Hour Work Day Fixed. Approved a finance committee report on a resolution by Councilman White to set eight hours a day as the maximum work day for all municipal employees.

9. Sent to the ordinance committee an ordinance providing for closing of restaurants for all municipal elections on July 15 of each year, effective January 1. Alderman G. Everett Millican was author of the measure.

10. Passed a Millican resolution proposing removal of the barracks at Fort McPherson.

11. Set up $75,000 for relief purposes, which is Atlanta's part of funds which must be guaranteed in order to obtain federal relief aid for the next three months.

12. Abolished the cadet system at the police station, and provided salaries for 20 additional regular patrolmen for the remainder of the year.

City Hall to Close Earlier. At 4:30 o'clock on every week-day (except Saturday, when the closing hour will be at noon. Employees will be allowed only 15 minutes for lunch under the new action.

Johnson Quits Bed, Leaves for New York

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(UP)—Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson left for New York tonight, driving directly to the station from Walter Reed hospital, where he has been for nearly two weeks.

General Johnson said he felt "pretty well but wobbly." He appeared much rested.

He underwent a minor operation and was persuaded to remain in the hospital longer than would ordinarily have been required so he could rest from the strain of recent weeks.

Edward F. McGrady, assistant administrator for labor, accompanied Johnson to New York.

BUTTER SURPLUS WILL GO TO NEEDY

Administration Officials Outline Relief Plans With Oversupply.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—An early transfer of millions of pounds of butter to the tables of those in want seemed likely today as one of the first results of President Roosevelt's decision that a good way to get rid of farm surpluses was to give them to the needy.

At conferences with Harry L. Hopkins, chosen to head the Emergency Corporation, whose purpose is to close the gap between overproduction and want, farm administration officials outlined plans to accumulate the butter surplus and turn it over to the relief organizations.

An announcement within the week is in prospect and a part of the plan probably will be a processing tax on butterfat to raise some of the necessary funds.

Estimates of the amount of butter in excess of present commercial requirements ranged between 50,000,000 and 100,000,000 pounds. A 1-cent-a-pound tax on butterfat would raise more than enough money to take care of the oversupply. In turn, Hopkins probably would be offered the butter at prices around 15 cents a pound, or less.

Farm officials said it would take only a few weeks to consume 100,000,000 pounds of butter if families on the relief rolls were given quantities proportionate to the amount the ordinary family would consume.

A production control program is being worked out to accompany the butterfat processing tax. Some means of eliminating low producers from dairies is under consideration and if these cows should be slaughtered, the by-products might be made available for relief.

Cloudy and Cooler Forecast for Today

Partly cloudy and considerably cooler weather today was predicted Monday by the weather bureau. The temperature today is expected to range between 58 and 75, while on Monday the range was 67 to 79, with 88 the maximum Sunday.

The first two days of October were above normal in temperature. The bureau measured .28 of an inch of rainfall Sunday, but expected none today. Frosts in Wisconsin, Michigan and Iowa Monday morning were reported by the weather bureau with a well-defined cold front extending from southern Texas to Virginia along which showers and thunderstorms have occurred. An inch or more of rain fell in several places, Galveston, Texas, reporting 3.26 and Charlotte, N. C., 2.28.

Poultry Exhibits Attract Crowds on Opening Day of Great Fair

ATTENDANCE MARK FORESEEN FOR FAIR

It was drawn to the fair early Monday morning when a snappy parade moved through the principal streets headed by Mayor James L. Key and city officials. Large crowds lined the streets to watch the parade but by the time the procession reached the fair grounds the school children already were in possession of the field. Mayor Key opened the grounds officially with a huge key made specially for the purpose.

One of the most popular spots on opening day was the big automobile and radio show presented by General Motors. One of the large exposition buildings has been turned over entirely to this show and it was packed to capacity at every performance of the radio programs. A broadcasting station has been installed and complete programs presented in full view of the crowds. Perry Bechtel and his band, the Carolina Tarheels and other well-known radio attractions are presented.

Automobile Show Interesting.
The automobile show itself is amazing. Almost every known model of automobile and truck is shown by General Motors as well as many of the other products of this company. Officials from the Chevrolet plant in Atlanta and zone manager of the Buick Olds-Pontiac organizations were present when the show opened.

In the Liberal Arts building two special shows are presented each day by a group of children under the direction of Miss Jessie Reese, of the Atlanta school system. In the agricultural building a puppet show is offered as an extra added attraction.

The grand stand was filled to overflowing an hour before the free programs began. The acts of Rita and Dunn on the high wire and the daring riders in the globe of death were enthusiastically received. Three other acts completed this part of the program. The dirt track was wet from the light rain which fell briefly and no records were broken in the bicycle races, but they attracted keen interest. Some of the best riders in the state entered the events.

Great Farm Displays.
In the agricultural show are some of the greatest displays of agricultural products ever seen in Atlanta. Farmers this year have brought to the fair some amazing records of production on one acre, particularly in cotton and corn. Samples of these crops are shown in all the agricultural displays. In addition to the regular county exhibits there are 18 separate displays offered by the Four-H Farm Club boys.

Fair executives, as well as the owners of the Royal American Shows, were happy Monday night at the unusually large attendance and because nearly everybody who went to the fair patronized the shows and paid attractions. There was not a moment during the entire day when all of the 20 shows and 14 rides of the Royal American Shows were not crowded to capacity.

At one time during the day all of the midway shows and rides were full, the grandstand was full down to the edge of the race track, the General Motors radio show was crowded to its utmost capacity, the Liberal Arts building was overflowing with people and the Agricultural building was filled to the limit. This condition lasted for several hours in the afternoon. In addition, the people swarmed along the plazas and terraces leading between the buildings and the grandstand. Officials said it was one of the greatest if not the greatest single day in the whole history of the Southeastern Fair.

Many See Stock Exhibits.
Considerable amount of attention was attracted by the cattle show and the poultry show, although school children do not often attend these offerings in large numbers. However, these two features drew big crowds Monday. The cattle show is one of the best ever seen here and since the Southeastern Fair always has held the reputation of showing the best cattle show in the south it is indicated that this year's attraction will maintain this reputation.

One of the most popular displays in the Liberty Arts building is the art exhibit sent by the High Museum of Art. Large crowds stood Monday and watched art students actually at work drawing from living models. There are some great paintings, many fine etchings and works in pastel and water color. There also is an exhibit of sculpture in this group.

Governor's Day.
Wednesday will be "Governor's Day," when Governor Eugene Talmadge and the members of his official staff attend in a body. The capitol will be closed that day to give all state employees an opportunity of visiting the fair.

City and county officials will be the honored guests at the fair Thursday. Mayor Key will head the city delegation and a holiday will be declared at city hall.

Friday will be observed as military day and a special program of drills and contests has been arranged by Duncan Peck, who is in charge of this feature. Officers and men from the fourth army corps area will stage the events.

Editors of the state will be guests of the fair management Saturday. At that time a special program of daring automobile races will be presented. The free attractions are offered each afternoon and night in front of the grandstand. A huge display of fireworks is offered every night.

Seven More Weeks Are Left In Which To Win Ad Prizes

By JAY ORR JR.

There is still a chance for you to win some of the $1,300 in the Ad-Writing contest, as Wednesday is only the beginning of the seventh week. Just think of those fortunate people winning one of the first three prizes and the other 18 winners.

Why shouldn't you be one of those prize winners? The answer is—you are not taking advantage of the splendid awards. You are not entering advertisements in the contest. And why aren't you when it is so easy?

There are so few requirements and no obligation at all that anyone can write an ad. Merely call at any one or all of the co-operating stores and ask for official Ad-Writing paper. It will be given you absolutely free. After having obtained this paper, write down your ideas. The ad may be written in any manner you wish and illustrated in the way you wish. However, to be a good ad, it must have a selling punch. It must create a desire to purchase the article about which you are writing.

There are still seven more weeks of this fascinating contest and what an opportunity to win extra Christmas money! Each week many new contestants are thrilled with their unknown ability to write an ad which results in the awarding of a prize.

Keep in mind that each week's entries are judged separately and if your advertisement did not win a prize one week you must enter one or more the next week.

All advertisements are being carefully filed and every one will be considered for the sweepstakes prizes. Don't forget that tomorrow is the day for entering your advertisements at Ad-Writing Headquarters, 137 Peachtree Arcade. Headquarters will open at 8:30 o'clock and remain open until 5:30 o'clock p. m.

Get your paper today, write your ads tonight and enter them Wednesday.

Conflicting claims came from both sides when the strike was only a few hours old. Union officials announced 17,000 drivers and helpers had walked out and the strike had prevented the movement of 75,000 sacks of flour from mills.

Bakeries, groceries and delicatessen owners, however, said their usual stocks of bread and sacks of flour had been delivered on time.

GEORGIA, S. C. HILLS SCoured FOR GOLD

Mining Receiving Marked Impetus in Augusta Territory.

By J. C. McALLIFFE.
AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 2.—The lure that led DeSoto and his intrepid followers to the hills above Augusta, after they found an Indian princess reigning at Silver Bluff, just below Augusta, bedecked in gold ornaments, which they said came from the region up the river, is leading a new army of developers to the same hills. Gold mining is receiving greater impetus than ever before in this territory. Both in Georgia and South Carolina, many

Athens Man Spikes Rumor of His Death

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 2.—Like Mark Twain, B. F. Voncannon, of Athens, believes that the rumor of his death is "greatly exaggerated." Mr. Voncannon, who operates a fruit store here, was returning from Florida the other day. Stopping in Macon, he lost his pocketbook. Whoever found it, rifled the contents, except the name plate, and threw it into some abandoned woods. Then somebody found the pocketbook in the secluded spot, and told police they believed the man had met with foul play. Macon police called Athens to check up, and when Mr. Voncannon arrived here he found the whole town discussing his death.

operations are either under way or in prospect and from the area where millions have been gathered in the past prospectors are now at work and many authorities are unified in expressing the belief that many more millions will soon be gleaned from the gold deposits of the section.

The Pioneer mine is a new development in the mineralized area, near McCormick, S. C., where the territory is already famous as having produced more than $2,000,000 in the Dorn mine, before the War Between the States, has been operating since the first of last February and two large shafts have been sunk to the depth of 100 feet, with gold ore returning highly satisfactory results, according to authorities. The operation of the Carolina Exploration Company also embrace placer mining along modern lines, and this promises to grow in magnitude. The company has trawls, air compressors and other equipment, while a 100-ton ore bin has just been added, with a 250-ton gyratory crusher, from which the ore goes over six amalgamation plates and then through six Denver flotation machines and finally to cyanide tanks, where the last of the precious metal is extracted. A range of $10 to $100 per ton in yields has been reported. The same company is operating on the property of Colonel William Greene, near Abbeville and over 50 people are now employed with the enterprise, the outlook being for doubling that number in the future.

In the meantime, M. G. and J. J. Dorn, of McCormick, are putting down two shafts adjacent to the famous old Dorn mines, and their preparations indicate they expect to conduct the most extensive and modern operations ever recorded in the section. In Georgia there are half a dozen minor operations in three counties above Augusta, all reporting successful operation, though many are yet antiquated. Plans are reported to be on foot for re-opening two of the large mines, notably the Columbia mines, near Voncannon, from which two or three millions of dollars have been obtained. The Parks mines, which was noted 40 years ago and the McGruder and Paschal mines, both of which have been long famed in the section. The advanced price of gold, which is now 50 per cent over previous figures, together with modern methods, leads many acquainted with the situation to believe that numerous small operations, together with at least half a dozen large enterprises, will be recorded in the territory in a short time.

PALMETTO OPENS CHURCH BUILDING

500 Attend Baptist Services Celebrating Completion of $7,000 Edifice.

By TURNER M. HERS.
PALMETTO, Ga., Oct. 2.—Members of the First Baptist church of Palmetto celebrated the completion of their new $7,000 church building with morning and evening services and a barbecue Sunday.

These, the first services to be held in the newly-finished edifice, were attended by more than 500 persons, many of them living elsewhere, but maintaining their church memberships here. Dedication exercises are scheduled to be held in the near future.

Ministers participating in the services were the Rev. Willis Howard Sr., of Wrens, Ga., and the Rev. Willis Howard Jr., pastor of the First Baptist church of LaGrange, who were in charge of the morning and afternoon services, respectively, and Rev. A. D. Howard, pastor.

The new structure, built from voluntary contributions of members and friends, is of cinder block and tile construction, contains a large auditorium, and is located on a high hill overlooking the Atlanta-Columbus highway. The architecture was planned so that a Sunday school unit can be constructed in the future without marring the appearance of the building. Bob Thomson, O. C. Adams, Cecil Hudson, N. W. Brittain and Howard Johnson composed the building committee.

The history of this Baptist institution began May 1, 1881, when 36 members of the old Ramoth Baptist church, near Palmetto, were granted letters of dismissal so that they could organize a new Baptist church at Palmetto. The new church was organized for the sake of convenience, and to better care for the religious needs of the Palmetto community.

Senator Would Substitute U. S. Funds for Process Tax

Norman Elsas, of Atlanta, Also Attacks Levy Directed Against Textile Manufacturers.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Senator Smith, democrat, South Carolina, chairman of the senate agricultural committee, said today he would ask congress for an appropriation to pay southern cotton farmers for the acreage they plowed under if the administration would suspend or abate the processing tax until that could be done.

Smith, speaking at a hearing called to ascertain whether competing interests, such as paper and jute, are given an unfair advantage over cotton because of the processing tax, said if congress refused to pay for the acreage plowed up, the administration could then levy a compensatory tax on the competing products.

"If we can appropriate millions for a forest army, millions for the AAA and millions for this and that and the other," Smith said, "I believe that we in congress will stand for an appropriation to take care of that acreage so the government will not be embarrassed by trying to find out where it will find it."

Raps Processing Tax. Smith assailed the processing tax and also the cotton plow-up, although, he pointed out, he plowed up a considerable portion of his own plantation in South Carolina.

Abatement of the processing tax on cotton products manufactured in competition with paper and jute previously had been urged by Norman Elsas, of Atlanta, president of the Fulton Bagging Company.

Elsas said both paper and jute were given an unfair advantage over cotton particularly in the manufacture of bags, by the processing tax.

"The falling of the sales of cotton products in competition with paper and jute is undoubtedly due to this processing tax," Elsas said. "I strongly believe the tax should be abated on cotton and do not think a tax should be put on paper."

Threat to Cotton. "It is almost impossible to see how any adequate compensatory tax can be applied to competing articles. If under this tax, paper and jute are allowed to become used generally, it will permanently cripple this phase of the cotton industry. I urged abatement of the tax on cotton used in the manufacture of articles competing with paper and jute at the earliest possible time."

Previously George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, had told the hearing that the shift of consumption from cotton to competing products was inevitable as long as the processing tax remained. Sloan asked for a compensating tax on competing products if no other means of remedying the situation were available.

Three Southerners Speak. Three southern representatives, Bullwinkle and Doughton, of North Carolina, and McSwain, of South Carolina, spoke in behalf of the cotton representatives. Each asked that cotton be put on an equal basis with competing products and that every precaution be taken to protect the cotton farmer. Elsas read a letter quoting a fertilizer company as saying it could not purchase cotton bags because the tax made them "prohibitive."

He read another letter cancelling an order for 5,000 bags because, the firm said, it was unable to pay the additional $14.00, $13 of which was due to the processing tax and the remainder due to increased NRA costs.

Elsas said the processing tax on a car of cotton bags ranged from $700 to $1,400 depending on the size and grade.

The hearing, called to ascertain whether the processing tax on cotton is causing disadvantages to the processor in competition from competing commodities, is supplementary to a similar hearing held two months ago which dealt generally with commodities or products in competition with cotton.

"Robbing Peter to Pay Paul." He asserted Secretary Wallace had said the processing tax was necessary to get money to pay for the acreage plow-up. Smith termed this "robbing Peter to pay Paul."

This is the most tragic period in American life," Smith declared. "We have arrived at the point where the standard of life demands legislation, but it needs men who understand one business in correlation with others. There has not been very satisfactory evidence of this up to the present time."

I thought it wrong to apply the processing tax to domestically consumed cotton when it can't be applied to that exported. When they announced the tax, the entire crop, not just the 45 per cent domestically consumed, slumped in price.

Equal Tax Urged. "It is an old economic law that when an obstruction, such as this tax, is placed in the way, men are going to seek a reasonable substitute. If you are going to put this tax on cotton, justice demands that you put it on the products that are going to take cotton's market away."

At the afternoon session, Jonas Mayer, of the Linen Supply Corporation of Chicago, and Frank Stromberg, sales manager of the Peerless Towel Supply Company, New York, and chairman of paper competition committee of the Linen Supply Association, both advocated compensatory taxes on paper products, such as towels and napkins, that compete with cotton.

Both said their firms were willing to bear the increased cost of the taxation provided a similar tax was placed on their competitors. They said since the tax went into effect many linen supply companies had lost accounts to paper manufacturers because their customers refused to pay the tax.

Four Burned to Death When Auto Overturns

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Two men and two girls were burned to death and two other persons were injured in an automobile collision on the new Scranton-Wilkes-Barre highway early today.

The dead: Lazarus Gordon, 21, Wilkes-Barre, driver of one car; Edward Katz, 21, Wilkes-Barre; Molly Lewenson, 20, of Scranton; Frances Reisman, 19, Scranton.

The injured were Frances Cohn, 19, Scranton, and Abe Cutler, 21, Wilkes-Barre.

Those killed and injured were in Gordon's car, which sideswiped one driven by Joseph Mullery, of Pittston, on an inclined curve.

Gordon's car left the road, rolled over, and burst into flames. Katz, Miss Reisman and Miss Lewenson, trapped in the wreckage, died in the flames. Gordon, tossed out of the car, was burned so badly that he died later in a Pittston hospital.

Cutler and Miss Cohn will recover, hospital attendants said.

FLORIDA CITRUS CROP PLACED AT $65,924,558

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 1.—(AP)—The state marketing bureau estimates the value of citrus fruits and vegetables harvested during the 1932-33 season at $65,924,558.

Folk county, the report stated, led the state in carlot shipments of citrus. Palm Beach county in vegetable carlot movements, and Hillsborough county in non-citrus fruits, mainly strawberries.

The gross value of oranges, grapefruit and tangerines of the season's harvest was placed by the bureau at $36,877,896 for the 28,409,630 boxes. Net value of the crop was fixed at $562,466, or about 2 cents a box return to the grower. The gross returns includes costs of marketing, production, selling and transportation.

DEAN OF THE CITADEL IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Heart Attack is Fatal to Oliver J. Bond, 68 Years Old.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Fifty-one years ago today, Oliver J. Bond, then a slender youth from Marion, reported at The Citadel here as a member of the first post-war class to enter South Carolina's historic military college, just reopening after being closed as a result of the War for Confederate Independence and the ensuing travail of reconstruction.

Yesterday, death broke for the first time since October 2, 1882, his connection with the institution—a connection that saw him progress through the roles of student, instructor, head of the mathematics department, superintendent, president, and, by his own choice for the last two years, dean.

Stricken with a heart attack while at his desk Friday, the 68-year-old educator sank rapidly, and little hope was held for his recovery from the first. He died shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday morning at his home on the campus.

Funeral services were arranged for 3 p. m. Tuesday at St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal church.

CHARLES PIEZ. WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Charles Piez, of Chicago, a past president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, died at a hospital today of pneumonia. He was 61.

With Charles M. Schwab, he directed the wartime work of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. He was a friend of President Roosevelt and was a White House dinner guest recently.

His health had been failing for the past five years and he had not been active in business since February, 1932.

Surviving are his widow, Laura Sadler Piez, formerly of Laurel, Mo., and a sister, Ernestine Piez, of New York.

Piez was made vice president and general manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation in November, 1917. He later succeeded Schwab as director general.

SAMUEL SHOENMAKER. BALTIMORE, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Samuel Shoemaker, 72-year-old chairman of the board of regents of the University of Maryland, died at his home at Eccleston, in Green Spring valley, late last night.

Shoemaker was a former president of the Maryland Agricultural College before its merger with the University of Maryland. He was a member of the Maryland state board of agriculture and head of the Baltimore county board of education. It was primarily through his efforts that the board of agriculture was created in 1916.

"UNCLE BEN" HODGE. POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., Oct. 2.—(AP)—"Uncle Ben" Hodge, 120 years old, who said after a recent operation that he was good for several more years, died today.

His death was attributed to a complication of physical ailments and infirmities.

His left leg was amputated on August 28 to check the spread of an ailment and, apparently recovering, he returned to the home of relatives.

League Group Notes

World Trade Gains

GENEVA, Oct. 2.—(AP)—A steady improvement in the world's economic situation, especially in the United States, was reported by various official sources today to delegates of 50 nations attending a meeting of the economic commission of the League of Nations assembly.

Open satisfaction was expressed by the delegates following the reading of the official report by the commission's reporter, Augusto Schmidt, Estonian minister to Rome, citing increased production and diminishing unemployment throughout the world.

This was followed by a statement by Alexander Loveday, head of the League's financial section, showing that the monthly trade returns of 49 nations during July, representing nine-tenths of the world's trade, show a value greater than in July, 1932.

Beware the Cough or Cold that Hangs On

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, and attacks the seat of the trouble.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Your own druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creomulsion.—(adv.)

Firm Declines to Print Huey Long's Swat Tale

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP)—A New York printing firm has refused to print 50,000 copies of Senator Huey Long's version of the eye-witness episode at Sands Point, L. I., the World-Telegram says today.

The kingfish at first ordered 100,000 copies printed, but when he learned of the cost of printing, reduced the order to 50,000, the story said. However, on advice of its attorneys, the printing firm refused the order, even though Senator Long offered cash.

The printing firm refused to discuss the matter, an official saying "Our dealings with Senator Long are confidential and we cannot speak one way or another. It is true, however, that we are not printing anything for him now. It is being printed elsewhere in New York."

PRISON BREAK SLAYERS ESCAPE INDICTMENT

ST. FRANCISVILLE, La., Oct. 2.—(AP)—The grand jury of West Feliciana parish today returned no true bills against eight convicts charged with the September 10 Angola prison riot which claimed seven lives.

Local residents attributed the grand jury's action to the failure of the state administration to pay $4,000, which parish authorities claim is due the parish for the trial of convicts involved in the 1928 prison break.

Supreme Court Meets Briefly and Recesses

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Returning from a four-month summer recess, the supreme court met briefly today to receive a few motions and then adjourned until next Monday.

Included in the motions was an effort by Colorado to compel the federal district court to turn over to it for trial in the state courts on the charge of murder Henry Dierks, a federal prohibition agent.

The court is expected to announce on Monday what action it will take on this and the other motions.

"NO BILL" RETURNED IN ALABAMA LYNCHINGS

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Oct. 2.—(AP)—A grand jury empaneled on August 15 to investigate the lynching of Dan Phipps Jr. and A. T. Harden, negroes, charged with an attack on and murder of a white girl, today returned a "no true" bill.

The grand jury held four sessions over a month and a half and today informed the court sufficient evidence to warrant an indictment had not been presented to it. Sheriff R. L. Shamblin, who was criticized for his order removing the negroes to the Jefferson county jail at Birmingham, was exonerated by the grand jury, which said it found nothing to reflect upon his integrity and efforts at law enforcement.

LOSS OF WYNN IS SEVERE BLOW TO VOL ELEVEN

Coach Neyland Seeks to Fill Shoes of Georgia Boy.

Delivered a stunning blow in the loss of Wynn in the opening football game, Coach Neyland, of Tennessee, Monday sought another fullback to fit into the Volunteer backfield.

Luckily, Tennessee expects little trouble Saturday from Mississippi State and so Neyland will have a fortnight to drill another fullback or to realize his ball-carrying quartet. On October 14 the Vols face a strong Duke eleven and the following week tackle Alabama in probably their most important duel of the season.

Neyland likely will call on Edwin (Toot) Palmer, a 6-foot, 170-pound sophomore from Shelbyville, Tenn., to carry on for Wynn. Palmer is a good all-round player, although lacking Wynn's experience and his ability as a defensive ace. He is an excellent punter.

Chet Wynne says he cannot understand why sports writers rank his Auburn team as one of the South-eastern conference title threats. And he fails to see why they reported Auburn's play as ragged against Birmingham-Southern and Ho. ard.

"They say we are ragged, but they mean in comparison with last year," Wynne explained. "Of course we are. We haven't anywhere near the team we had a year ago. Graduation and injuries have cut heavily into our squad. I'm using almost an entire senior team and have few of the capable reserves of last season."

"We're playing the best we can and will improve some. You cannot expect as polished a performance from us as we gave at times in 1932."

Bob McQuaque's 50-yard place kick for a field goal—one of the longest in southern history—for North Carolina State against Georgia Saturday and Dick Dorsey's 87-yard run for a touchdown from kickoff for Tennessee against Virginia Tech stand out as two of the best individual exploits of Saturday's contests.

McQuaque's long boot put N. C. State in a temporary lead over Georgia but his action brought to a close all the Wolfpack's scoring efforts of the day.

Credit for Dorsey's run must also go to Freddie Moses, the little reserve quarterback, who swung in front of Dorsey as he caught the kick and led the way across the goal, brushing aside all tacklers.

VEECK SUFFERS TURN FOR WORSE

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—(P)—The condition of William L. Veeck, president of the Chicago National league baseball club, who has been suffering from influenza, took such a drastic turn for the worse today that his life was in serious danger.

Veeck entered the St. Luke's hospital Friday and making excellent progress until complications set in, his attending physician, Dr. Leo Clowes, said.

"All I can say now is that his condition is grave," Dr. Clowes added.

The Cub president started out as a newspaper reporter for the Courier-Journal in 1900 and subsequently came to Chicago, where he worked for the Chicago Evening American. He became president and treasurer of the Cubs in 1919 after the late William Wrigley Jr. called him into his office for leveling attacks at the team and told him to try his own hand in running the club. Since his selection, the Cubs have been one of the most consistent winners and money makers in the major leagues.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES

Alex Morrison says: Consistency may not be so hard to attain in putting as it is in other parts of the game, but it's just as important.

With all the different styles of putting, it seems as though the player should have no difficulty in finding a method that would assure him of good results most of the time. But in spite of the number of ways he's tried, steadiness is still lacking.

Dropping the right arm close enough to the body so that the elbow can rest against the inner part of the leg will do as much as any other one thing to steady you.

Also keep it there during your stroke.

GOLFERS! Save these articles and illustrations for future reference, as Alex Morrison says: "The closer a player approximates these positions and movements the greater and more lasting will be his success in golf."

GOOD, IF TRUE.

L. V. Hitchman, Seattle, golfer playing the Rainier course, struck the very top of the flagpole with a 25-yard approach but made a par 5 when the ball slid down the pole like a sailor down a rope and plopped into the hole.

Strib Fights Gamely With "Pa" In His Corner!

Hundreds of times W. L. Stribling has come back to his corner in the rings of a hundred towns all over the world to find "Pa" Stribling waiting with the water and the advice.

"How'm I doing, Pa?" the boy would ask. And yesterday, in the hospital at Macon, "Pa" Stribling was there at the corner of the hospital bed where W. L. Stribling lay. He had lost his left foot and been badly crushed internally in an accident Sunday at noon.

He was having his greatest fight and there was a shadowy form out there who was pretty tough to keep away. It kept coming in and the fight was hard. And so he turned his head to "Pa" Stribling yesterday afternoon when the going was toughest and asked:

"How'm I doing, Pa?"

And Pa patted his shoulder and told him to keep fighting. There were some more rounds coming up but he had enough to win.

A great family—the Striblings. I have heard people say that it was a case of too much family and for that reason W. L. Stribling never got to the top. This was so much vaporing.

The boy would never have gone as far as he did with the tin-eared mugs of the game. He had everything but the killer instinct; that murderous, viciousness that is spawned in bitterness and reared in adversity. He would never have gone as far as he did without his family, without his mother and father and wife. He was always a carefree kid who liked to play jokes and have a good time. And he liked his friends and was loyal to them. His family never retarded his progress. And had it come to leaving them to win one of the tinsel crowns of the game he would have passed it up.

He had no vicious killer instincts because he had been reared in kindness and gentleness. There had been no life in the slums of great cities, no years in hobo jungles, no acid of bitterness eating into his heart to give him that killer instinct. That was why he was never champion.

And with the shadowy form out there that kept coming in he would have missed it a lot had "Pa" not been there at his corner when the rounds ended, and if the shadowy form gets the decision the boy would want "Pa" there with him at the last bell.

THE STRIBLING CAMPS.

The Stribling training camps were never cluttered up with gangsters and their sort.

I recall the rival camp before his biggest fight and the day some tough-looking gentry arrived there. One of them was reported to be a well-known mobster and when a newspaperman asked about it, one of the retinue answered:

"Can't a guy visit his friends?"

The Stribling cottage was a quiet place with two colored cooks from Georgia cooking the food. And in the evenings W. L. played cards and played tricks, such as putting a small pet turtle into the pockets of the visitors.

And "Ma" and "Pa" were there and the meals and the evenings were pleasant.

And at the rival camp there were tough guards and ropes and a different air. And Stribling lost the fight.

He lost to a plodding German boy who had known hunger and cold and bitterness. This was all the difference. It wasn't a matter of courage. It was a matter of instinct. And nothing else.

HE HAD THE COURAGE.

I recall an airplane flight with Stribling from Atlanta to Nashville.

Just over Fort McPherson the engine quit. There were four of us in the plane and we all went green. Because there were no landing fields nearby and the trees were thick below. And our altitude was only 1,000 feet.

He put the ship into a circular bank and said, "Don't worry. I'll get her down."

And then he went to work. And when we were down to 700 feet the motor caught again and we went on.

It was a tough few moments and the only person not scared, and badly scared, was W. L. Stribling.

And on the flight he would take his hands off the wheel, yawn and close his eyes. And kick the rudder with his knee so that the plane would wobble. It was perfectly safe but he had to have his fun.

And I liked the answer of Jack Dempsey, a close friend and real admirer of Stribling, when asked if he thought Stribling was lame.

"Ever see him fly?" said Jack and nothing else.

THE BIG FELLOWS ARE ALL RESTLESS.

They are all restless—all the big fellows. They have such a tremendous energy that it must be spent in some fashion. Dempsey is much like Stribling. He is always playing tricks; always going somewhere; always liking speed; always on edge.

Stribling liked speed. After his first ride in a blimp he told me, "I'd rather ride in a buggy. It would be faster." Because the sensation of speed in a blimp, which makes about 40 miles per hour, is nil.

Stribling attended air races and always longed for a faster plane. He won some events with his own plane but its 125 miles per hour was not fast enough for him. I recall the day at his training camp before the Schemling fight when he slipped out on the same motorcycle he rode Sunday and opened it up at 85 miles per hour down an Ohio road.

When we remonstrated with him he said, "I just HAD to see how fast it would go."

ALWAYS THE GAG.

He always had a gag line ready.

After the terrible battering of the Schmeling fight he was sitting on a table in his dressing room, his face battered, his lips swollen. Jay Thomas, one of the Stribling camp personnel, had put on a beauty contest at the camp a few days before the fight.

Stribling, in the most disappointing hour of his life, mumbled through his broken mouth, "I wouldn't win one of Jay's beauty contests, would I?"

And when they picked him up Sunday he grinned and said, "I guess this means no more road work."

PETRELS IN CONTACT FOR MANHATTAN GAME SATURDAY

Squad Goes Through Battle of Alabama Without Injuries.

By Jack Troy.

While the Ogletheorpe Petrels were swept away by a strong Crimson Tide undertow Saturday at Tuscaloosa there were no drownings.

Three big Alabama elevens, any one as effective as the other, turned on a lot of power, subjected the lighter Petrels to a bruising afternoon.

But there was a glowing testimonial to Coach Harry Robertson after the game was over and Alabama was away to a 34-to-0 start.

There wasn't an Ogletheorpe player put on the shelf because of injuries. This speaks eloquently for the condition of the squad, and makes matters brighter for the Manhattan game Saturday in New York.

Three quarters of driving rain did more to drown the Petrels than anything else. It nullified their spectacular offense, but this made no difference. The astounding manpower of Alabama would have done it anyway.

AN IDEA.

A splendid insight into the strength of Frank Thomas' current Alabama squad is contained in Coach Robertson's statement that he would be very happy to have Alabama's second team line in front of his back.

"Who is that third-string center, Joe Diddy?" Robertson asked after the game. "He looked better to me than the other two."

Diddy blocked Wade's quick kick in the third period and opened the way for the final Alabama touchdown, which came on the first play of the fourth period.

Phil Hildebreath, Ogletheorpe back, played a great defensive game for Ogletheorpe. Wade, Metrick, Leslie, Wren, Farmer and Anderson showed potentialities.

There is only one thing that is holding back the Alabama team right now. The Notre Dame offense is not functioning smoothly. Thomas has been getting better results in other formations.

SHOULD SURVIVE.

But really nothing should keep Alabama from battering its way through the schedule unbeaten. For the south's finest material is to be found at the Capstone.

They really should incorporate over there and call it the Alabama Power and Light Company. Teams that have ambitions of winning will see the light.

Ogletheorpe went back to work yesterday in preparation for the Manhattan game. Coach Harry Robertson has strong hopes of upsetting Charlie McEwan's Jaspers. Jack Harrison, flashy wingback who missed the Alabama game because of injuries, possibly will be back.

The squad will leave Thursday for the game.

OLIVER LEADS DIXIE SCORERS

Scoring honors in the Southeastern conference football race—for the first two weeks—go to the fleet-footed Oliver, of Vanderbilt.

Although he was unable to score in the game against the Oklahoma Sooners, Oliver has four touchdowns to his credit, together with one extra point, making a total of 25 markers for the season.

Next on the list comes McMillan, of Kentucky, with three touchdowns for a total of 18 points. McMillan likewise crossed the line in the Wildcats' opener only, failing to score last Saturday against Sewanee.

Ten players have twice experienced the thrill of taking the ball over for a touchdown this year, and all but one made their 12 points in the same game. Rogers, of Auburn, scored once in the opening game and again last Friday night.

Others credited with 12 points are Chappell and McDonald, of Alabama; Feathers, Tennessee; Dupree and Talley, Auburn; Dixon, Vanderbilt; Davis, Georgia Tech; White, Mississippi, and Curtis, Mississippi State. None of these, except Oliver, was able to add the extra point. No field goals have been recorded so far.

Atlanta Youth

Is Bike Champion

Cecil Hursley, of Savannah, won the state bicycle championship Monday afternoon at the Southeastern Fair, and Billy McAdams, of Atlanta, is the 1933 junior champion of the state.

The track was very slow, due to the Sunday night storm.

Billy and Cecil came in first in eye of the crowd, and in the second time that either of them had raced.

Eighteen-year-old Cecil Hursley had never raced before the city championship race in Savannah last week. He won that race and got a trip to Atlanta, where he was victorious in every senior event.

Billy McAdams is only 14, but he showed plenty of speed and endurance. He stayed well ahead of the other boys, all under 16 years of age, in all three events.

Hard Week of Work Faces Prep Elevens

Hard scrimmages will be the order of practice today as Atlanta's prep football teams prepare for the week's games on Thursday and Friday.

Boys' High faces the hardest game of the week when the Purples meet Gordon Institute Friday night at Ponce de Leon park.

The Purples won the city, state and southern prep titles last year, but suffered the loss of many stars through graduation.

Gordon Institute has another heavy team that will rank with the best in the state. Kid Cecil's eleven defeated Brewton-Parker last Friday afternoon and showed plenty of power in winning the game from the junior college.

Coach Doyle scouted the Gordon-Brewton Parker game and was not so optimistic over his chances. "Any team that beats Gordon this year will have the inside track on claims for a state championship," Doyle said.

'W. L.' Fights Losing Battle

Latest reports from the Macon hospital where W. L. Stribling, internationally-known heavyweight fighter and a first lieutenant in the reserve air corps, is confined after an automobile accident of Sunday were that the young Georgian's death was "a matter of hours only unless some radical change occurs." He was reported as having an even chance Monday morning but began to fail in the afternoon.

JACKETS HOLD LIGHT PRACTICE

Georgia Tech's football team took things lightly in practice yesterday following its 39-2 victory over Clemson at Grant field Saturday.

Coach Alexander decided that the Jackets could best benefit from more working on plays and an extensive signal drill was held, with considerable time being devoted to kicking and practicing the kick-off.

Tech was not forced to do any punting to speak of in the contest with the South Carolinians, excepting in the first quarter, when a few kicks were exchanged. They will have to kick more often against Kentucky.

Shifting of Phil Chance, rangy sophomore tackle, to center and that of Linsay, another sophomore, to Chance's former position at left tackle were the major developments in the squad following Saturday's game. Lyons, sophomore center, was returned to the Grey Devil squad until scholastic difficulties are cleared up.

Mercer Coach Praises Army; '34 Game Likely

Bears Return From Great Battle at West Point in Good Shape; Navy Next.

By Jimmy Jones.

Tired and travel worn but bringing back never-to-be-forgotten memories of the big, friendly crowd at West Point which stood and cheered them at the end of the game and again when they rode through lanes of civilians and cadets to the station, Mercer's football squad of 23 players arrived in Atlanta early Monday following their hard game of Saturday with Army which they lost by a score of 19-6 after a courageous last half rally.

Coach Lake Russell and his assistants, Tiger Bennett and Skeet Horner, reported the squad in fairly good condition following their first big inter-sectional game, outside of the usual number of bumps and bruises.

The Mercer players and coaches were greatly impressed by the cordiality of their reception and the hospitality with which they were treated at the Point, particularly after the game when many officials and officers of the military academy came around to the team's dressing room to personally extend their congratulations.

"I never saw such a fine and sincere group of sportsmen as there are at West Point and the boys and I would like very much to go back there again," Coach Russell declared.

CROWD WONDERFUL.

"The crowd at the game was wonderful in its display of sportsmanship; it applauded all of our good plays and made the boys feel awfully good after they lost the ball twice inside the 10-yard line near the close of the game," he added.

The Bears were playing from behind all the way but their magnificent offensive which out-gained the Cadets, 14 first downs to 7, and out-rushed them from snaps, 243 yards to 196, caught the fancy of the 10,000 fans, most of whom had never dreamed that Mercer could make it interesting for the Army.

The crowd was larger than that which saw Army play Pittsburgh last year and the Cadets' largest opening crowd in years.

Coach Russell was well pleased with the battle his boys put up, particularly after the first quarter stiffness. "The Bears' forward pass attack was particularly effective, 12 out of 18 tosses, most of them from Trommerhauser, being completed."

"General Lee," Mercer's aggressive 150-pound kicker who made the 55-yard run after catching a pass that led to the Bears' only touchdown, did fine work throughout the game, particularly on returning kicks and punts.

Eastern writers who covered the game compared this Fitzgerald (Ga.) lad favorably with Buckler, the Army star.

HICKER MISSED.

Lack of a first-class kicker cost the Bears heavily. Russell's 24 punters were able to average only 24 yards while Buckler, of the Army, averaged 43.

"Ordinarily that kind of kicking will lose a football game," Russell said. Lake said he would try to develop Tom Porter, a sophomore, into a kicker. Porter kicked better than the others Saturday.

The Mercer coach thought Buckler should have been stopped on his first run, that of 98 yards for a touchdown early in the game, but said that his secondary was slow in getting up and failed to hold onto the slippery 160-pound Texan after tagging him. Buckler momentarily fumbled the ball, but recovered and twisted through for a touchdown.

Russell thought Buckler a very fine competitor.

"I guess we were a little stiff in that first quarter and that first run of Buckler's and our poor punting

LACK OF SLEEP HURTS CHANCE OF FAMOUS BOY

W. L.'s Pulse and Temperature Increase as He Fails Rapidly.

BULLETIN.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 2. Shortly after 11 o'clock Monday night, Dr. A. P. Kemp, one of the physicians attending W. L. Stribling, said that unless there was an immediate change that death was a "matter of hours only."

"It looks as if we are fighting a losing battle," he said. "W. L.'s pulse and temperature have increased. His pulse is 170 (80 is normal) and his temperature is 105 3-10. His heart is very bad. He began to fail this morning, rallied slightly about 8 o'clock and then began to fail again," he said.

By Jimmy Jones.

A serious-faced, kindly family physician stood over the white hospital bed where W. L. (Young) Stribling, Georgia's world-famous fighter, lay fighting the battle of his life yesterday. All night and all day the boxer watched the clean-cut count on his back had been counter-punching with death.

He looked up at Dr. A. P. Kemp, the doctor he had known from boyhood, who was standing there watching so anxiously.

"Doc . . ." and the words came feebly from lips parched with 105 degrees of temperature. . . . "Doc, am I going to die?"

The physician leaned over to catch the words and laid a gentle hand upon the feverish forehead.

A SLIGHT CHANCE.

"We're not going to let you die, W. L.," he told him. "You've got a hard fight on your hands, harder than you ever had in any ring, but you have a chance to win it."

"All right then, doc, I'll fight . . . I just wanted to know if I was going to die."

While the 25-year-old boxer whose name was known in practically every city and country and hamlet where the sport of boxing is known, waged his supreme battle in the Macon hospital, following his tragic accident of Sunday, telegrams of sympathy and good wishes for his recovery poured in from all parts of the United States. Notables in the fight world, newspapermen who had known and liked him, ex-champions in all divisions, including Jack Dempsey, paused to remember the clean-cut count who had given the game so much of his life—in fact all of his life since he was six years old.

ALL FOR STRIB.

There were telegrams from hundreds of friends throughout the world, a stack of them too big to be opened at the time. All expressed hope that Strib would beat death to the punch and pull out of it.

At 6 p. m. his condition remained critical. Doctors' bulletins still gave him a chance of recovery, although showing a note of anxiety at the temperatures.

"Pa" Stribling, father of the fighter and his first and only manager, was almost constantly at or near his bedside, after an all-night ride from Birmingham.

At intervals, W. L. talked coherently with his dad.

"Now am I doing, Pa?" he asked at one time. "Am I making it all right?"

And Pa, who had been asked the same question by W. L. between rounds of the fight with Max Rosenbloom at Houston the night of September 22, when he heard of his son's injury, Pa thought his son looked good in that fight. It was his last fight and he won it.

"You know he knocked Maxey down once," Pa said proudly, although in a husky voice, over the telephone. "He looked better than he has since he came from Europe." That was the characteristic Pa Stribling, always boasting his son up the ladder, no matter how far down he might fall.

Meanwhile newspapers are being kept busy answering inquiries about Stribling's condition. Atlantans were particularly interested for S

TULANE'S LOSS IS BIG UPSET OF SATURDAY

Iowa Comes Through Against Northwestern in Another Reversal.

By Henry Super,

United Press Staff Correspondent.
NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(UP)—Big times of the nation's football teams met stiff opposition Saturday as the gridiron season gained momentum.

Heavily favored eleven not only met with unexpected difficulties but the schedule, as on opening day a week earlier, was studied with upsets.

In the east three important teams won by comparatively narrow margins. Pittsburgh, a highly-touted outfit, scored a 9-0 victory over the Red and Black players from Washington and Jefferson in the final minutes of a bitterly fought contest.

SERVICE TEAMS WIN.

The two service academies, Army and Navy, triumphed by scores which are not expected to reflect championship contenders. Army beat Mercer, 19 to 0, after a hard fight, and Navy turned back William and Mary, 12 to 0.

One big upset of the day occurred in the south when Tulane's Green Wave was humbled, 13 to 6, by Texas A. & M. Georgia beat North Carolina State, 20 to 10, not an impressive score, and Washington and Lee could win only 14 to 6 over Roanoke. However, Alabama triumphed 34-0 over Oglethorpe; Duke bowled over Virginia Military, 37-0; and Georgia Tech beat Clemson, 30-2. Little Seaweed held Kentucky to a 7-0 victory.

Another big upset occurred in the Midwest where mighty Northwestern was trampled, 7 to 0, by Iowa, underdogs of Big Ten football for the past four years. Three other Big Ten teams were held to low scores. Illinois beat Drake, 13 to 6; Indiana shaded Miami (Ohio), 7-0; and Minnesota downed South Dakota State, 19 to 6. However, Ohio University rolled up 61 points against Morris Harvey's 0.

MORAL VICTORY.

In the far west Stanford nosed out University of California at Los Angeles by the slim margin of one field goal, 3 to 0. This was considered a moral victory for Stanford's new coach, Tiny Thornhill, however, because last season U. C. L. A. beat Pop Warner's Stanford outfit. Southern California beat Loyola, 18 to 0; Oregon beat Gonzaga, 14 to 0; Washington downed Idaho, 32-6; and Washington State smothered Puget Sound, 58-0. California, beaten last week by Little Santa Clara, scored a double-header victory, walloping California Aggies, 39-0, and Nevada, 34-0.

Texas downed Texas Mines, 22-6.

KLEIN AND FOXX BATTING CHAMPS

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(UP)—Two new major league batting champions were crowned Sunday as the 1933 baseball season ended. Chuck Klein, of the Phillies, and Jimmie Foxx, of Philadelphia's Athletics, stood first in the National and American leagues, respectively, without a chance of losing their places in the final reckoning of the season's records before the official averages are made public during the winter.

Unofficial records, including today's games, gave Klein a .368 average, just equal to the mark that won the National league crown for Frank (Lefty) O'Doul, of Brooklyn, last year, and Foxx a .356 average. Jimmie put on a spurt in his final game, hitting three times in five attempts to add two points to his mark, but he still fell far short of the .367 average that Dale Alexander, of Boston, made a year ago to beat him out for the title.

Second to Foxx, Heinie Manush and Lou Gehrig, of the New York Yankees, were tied at .334 while Klein's teammate, Virgil "Spud" Davis, took second in the National league with a .349 mark.

The unofficial records of the leading five batsmen in each major league follow:

| | N. | A. | P. | N. | P. |

| Klein, Philadelphia | 141 | 486 | 101 | 223 | .368 |

| Foxx, Philadelphia | 137 | 382 | 48 | 117 | .356 |
| Terry, New York | 137 | 382 | 48 | 117 | .356 |

Chicago Writers Ignore Landis; Name Scorers

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—(UP)—The first successful defiance of the power of Kenesaw Mountain Landis as high commissioner of baseball has been accomplished by the Chicago chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Without consulting the Chicago baseball writers, Landis appointed Harry Nelly and Jim Crisberry, former Chicago newspapermen, as official scorers of the city series between the Cubs and White Sox. The local chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association objected to this procedure on the ground that they had a right to have a hand in naming the scorers.

A committee of three was appointed to consult the commissioner, and after two hours Landis admitted he had made a mistake, but said he saw no way to rectify it.

The baseball writers replied that they would name their own scorers and ignore the commissioner's scorers. All newspapers have agreed to use the box score kept by the baseball writers, Edgar Munzel and Herbert Simmons.

'EXPERTS' FAIL TO DOPE CHOICE FOR WASHINGTON

Crowd of 40,000 to See Opener at New York.

By Alan Gould.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(UP)—In the vast dull green arena beneath historic Coogan's bluff, the players had their last rehearsals today under watchful eyes. Around the box office the last rush was on for reserved seats, now available on the single game basis, but there were still plenty to be sold. Along Broadway betting men were beginning to offer the tempting "even money and take your pick."

The groggies of the experts, after a fortnight of struggle with the dope sheets, was still trying frantically to decide which of three candidates will pitch for the Washington Senators against Carl Owen Hubbell, ace southpaw of the New York Giants, in the opening game of the World Series tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock (eastern standard time).

BIG HEADACHE.

The chief pre-series uncertainty—Washington's pitching choice—was still big headache for the critics tonight as the rival clans gathered, breathed defiance in the hotel lobbies and "dug in" for the duration of the latest of baseball's annual inter-league wars.

The day's only withdrawal from the opening game lineup was Mayor John O'Brien, who was to have thrown out the first ball. The city's chief executive notified the Giants that "pressure of official business" would prevent him from attending the game.

"Football weather," cloudy and cool, was predicted for tomorrow. Officials of the New York club were optimistic of a crowd of at least 40,000. This would be some 9,000 short of a sell-out for the Polo Grounds, all freshly decked with red, white and blue bunting for its first World Series since 1924. The attendance will depend on the rush for 20,000 unreserved grandstand seats and 5,000 bleacher tickets, to be put on sale at 9 a. m.

TWO GAMES.

Two games will be played here before the Giants and Senators shift the battle to Clark Griffith stadium, Washington, for the third, fourth and fifth engagements, scheduled Thursday, Friday and Saturday. If neither team has selected four victors within that stretch, as the odds are all against it, they will resume the struggle at the Polo Grounds next Sunday in the sixth game and play the seventh and concluding game, if necessary, on Monday.

Thus within a week's time the new champion of the baseball world will be decided, having a lead time of weather, and it was still a wide open guess tonight as to whether it would be the well-balanced, more experienced American league standard-bearer or the aggressive, surprise-winners of the National league.

The Giants slogan is "Win With Hubbell." The home club has an all-around advantage in the box that is admitted even by the Senators. They have a great young right-hander in Hal Schumacher and a veteran in left-hander Jimmy Foxx, who is a natural left-hander. But the team's main confidence and chief hopes rest in the talented left arm of Hubbell and his famous "screw ball." It's the one weapon they think the hard-hitting American leaguers cannot resist.

NO NEED TO WORRY.

In short, the shoutout King of the National League, a lean, lanky fellow who thrives on tough assignments, is expected to throttle the Senators' big hitters and send the Giants off to a flying start. With Hubbell in the box, such things as Travis Jackson's troublesome knees at third base and Manager Bill Terry's cold, which has settled uncomfortably in his left eye, do not worry the home team.

Much more concern has been manifested over who will oppose Hubbell than Joe Cronin, Washington's 26-year-old manager and shortstop, smilingly continued to "play possum" on the subject throughout the day. "All I can tell you is that it will be Al Crowder, Ed Whitcomb or Wally Stewart," said Cronin, as he parried all questions designed to pin him down. "They are all ready to pitch and I'll make up my mind tomorrow." Having gone around in a complete circle of "dope" during the past week.

FRANK SPEER AND O'SHOCKER CLASH TONIGHT

Former Jacket Faces Test With Irishman at Auditorium.

It's up to Frank Speer tonight whether or not he reaches the "big time" in wrestling.

The former Georgia Tech football star will meet none other than Pat O'Shocker, the terrible Irishman, in the main bout of Matchmaker Weber's wrestling card at the city auditorium and will be up against the hardest match of his career.

Speer is striving to make the top in his chosen line of endeavor and in recent matches has displayed a remarkable ability as a wrestler. In his last four matches he won two and got draws in the other two with some tough wrestlers. By this he has won a large following here and all are "pulling" for him to overcome O'Shocker tonight. It will mean much to the former Yellow Jacket if he can defeat the huge Irishman.

The former Jacket entered the mat game with a determination to succeed and with the courage of a football player and sound body he has gradually worked himself to a point where he is regarded as one of the toughest young matmen in the game today. O'Shocker is rugged and experienced but he will have his hands full when he faces the old Tech tackle tonight. What Speer lacks in experience he will make up in fight and determination.

The semi-windup will bring together two fiery exponents of the rough elements of the mat game. Joe DeVito, Italian veteran, meets Casey Berger, young western buster, in the one-hour semi-windup. Both are known for their rough repertoire of mat tricks and the fans will see a lively match.

A short preliminary will open the card at 8:15 o'clock. Tickets have been placed on sale at the Piedmont Hatters and the Miner & Carter drug store. The box office at the auditorium opens at 8 o'clock. Matchmaker Weber urges all mat fans to buy their tickets in advance to avoid the last-minute box office rush.

The experts' consensus tonight was that it will be Crowder, the hard-working right-hander. They argued that Crowder has been the lead-off man in every vital series all year, that by starting the first game he can thus be used offener and that Cronin still is in a "daze" dating back to last spring, when he accepted the "General's" confident offer to start the World Series.

RELIEF WORK.

Manager Joe warned aside the suggestion that Crowder might be reserved for strong-arm relief duty, along the lines that Connie Mack utilized Bob Grove in 1929 against the Chicago Cubs. He added: "Jack Russell and Al Thomas are slated for the main relief work, if and when they are needed."

On the other hand, it was pointed out that Crowder has not been so effective during the last few weeks and that the chances are he would be less effective against the Giants' left-handed hitters than either Whitehill, ace southpaw of the Senators, or Stewart, another crafty left-hander. Terry and Mel Ott, the home team's chief clubbers, swing from the left side.

Whitehill was the only member of the "big three" to unlimber his pitching arm today. Cronin looked him over during a brief workout with Catcher Luke Sewell but refused to admit this had any significance. Cronin's only definite statement was that Goose Goslin, the veteran slugger, will start in right field, with the idea of giving the Senators all possible "punch" as they aim for the short home-run targets at the Polo Grounds.

"It's a great park for the Goose, if he can connect," smiled Cronin. "And I think the rest of our hitters will like it too, from the way Heinie Manush and Joe Kuhel pounded our National league ball into those stand today."

FIRST OFF DAY.

When Al Simmons took a day off from his duties as a White Sox outfielder in mid-September it was the first game he had missed in two seasons.

Wolfpack Counts Six Regulars Out

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 2.—(UP)—North Carolina State's Wolfpack counted a toll of six injured regulars last night as a result of the Georgia game at Athens and the outlook for several of them being in shape for the Clemson game Saturday was dim. Roscoe Roy, halfback, had a back injury which it appeared would keep him out of practice several days. Bohannon, Don Wilson, Farrar, Stephens and Buchanan had hurts which may mean they cannot play this week.

TULANE PLAYS WILL OCCUPY GEORGIA TEAM

Coaches To Work on Line; Many Penalties in State Game.

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 2.—Georgia's Bulldogs got down to serious knitting this afternoon as they began preparation for the crucial Tulane game here this week-end. Mindful of their numerous and varied blunders they committed against North Carolina State Saturday, the Bulldogs started a concerted campaign to improve their ragged offensive and to develop a pass defense for the Tulane aerial game.

Coach Harry Mehe was entirely dissatisfied with the snapping of his centers and gave all his pivoters a full lesson on how the work is properly done. He intends making this a daily routine for Yank Ludwig and John McKnight, the sophomore who came through in great style against State's running game.

MANY PENALTIES.

But most of the fretting of the Georgia coaches was caused by the unusual number of yards lost through penalties. The official's rulings were responsible for Georgia giving away the astounding total of 125 yards, due primarily to rough line play. So the general polishing of line maneuvers was cross-blocking began this afternoon. Down-field blocking came in for a share of the long workout.

Coaches Chick Shiver and Vernon (Cattish) Smith returned from the Crescent City with note books bulging with the plays Tulane used against the Texas Aggies Saturday. They saw Tulane employ a beautiful passing game in losing a close game to the Texans and came back praising the punting of three Greenie backs, particularly that of Bryan, a sophomore.

The Bulldog backs and centers went right to work perfecting a defense against the passing game Ted Cox has developed. More than an hour was given over to this one job. Georgia looked effective against North Carolina passing because most of State's heaves were misdirected. They have lots to learn before the lateral and lateral-forwards of the Louisianians come to Sanford stadium.

NO INJURIES.

The whole squad came through the opening game without a mishap of any consequence. All the players were in uniform today and went back to work cheered by the victory over Clipper Smith's strong Wolfpack. "Jumping Joe" Crouch and Al McIntosh, out with injuries for more than a week, were in uniform today and ran signals with the third backfield. They will be ready to scrimmage by Wednesday.

NRA 'CHISELERS' TO FACE U. S. JURY

Judge Underwood, in Charge, Says Penalties Must Be Enforced.

Both the operation of the NRA and the boldness and prevalence of kidnapping were touched upon Monday by Judge E. Marvin Underwood, of federal district court, in his charge to the October federal grand jury.

Grand jurors, he said, are expected to inquire into violations of the national recovery act, and act accordingly. It was to be hoped, he added, that the law would be obeyed voluntarily. If not, the penalties must be enforced, he told the jury.

Businessmen, he pointed out, had claimed that the legislators have been insufficiently informed to legislate wisely in business matters and that the businessmen must be permitted to regulate themselves. NRA gave them the opportunity, the court said.

"Under the law, new experiments in government are being tried and we all hope they will succeed," Judge Underwood said. "They have been devised by sincere and courageous statesmen and are based upon the study and thought of economists and political and social scientists of the highest rank, who have devoted their lives to the solution of the problems envisaged."

"These laws offer opportunity for testing out two great ideas advocated respectively by two groups—the businessmen and the political scientists. Chance to Regulate Selves."

"Businessmen have long claimed that the legislative branch of our government has been insufficiently informed to legislate wisely in matters affecting business and that they should be permitted to regulate and reform themselves."

"The advanced political and social scientists, and some of the leading businessmen, too, have urged economic planning as a necessary condition to successfully meet the demands of our present highly complex economy."

"We are reducing both of these ideas to practical application and are hopefully awaiting a successful outcome."

"The businessmen, represented by their trade associations, are given their chance to legislate for their own industries—to work out their code of laws under which they will operate, subject to approval of the government."

"If this code is fair and just and faithfully obeyed they will be unopposed by the law in the operation of their industries, but if they seek only their selfish interests and do not present fair codes, or seek by sharp practice to evade the obligations of their codes, which they have adopted, then the government will recognize the inability, or unwillingness of such offenders to regulate and reform themselves, and will step in and write codes for them, or require them to obey the codes they have voluntarily adopted for themselves."

"Waiting to See Result."

"The country is waiting to see whether they will willingly and fully co-operate with the government in its herculean effort to pull out of the depression, or will have to be forced to obey their laws by imposition of the penalties provided by the laws."

"The political and social scientists and advanced economists are also given their opportunity to put into operation their well thought out scheme for economic planning on a large scale: the balancing of production and demand; the better distribution of labor and purchasing power; the lessening of unemployment and a more equal bargaining power between employers and employees by giving the latter the legal right of collective bargaining and representation of their free choosing."

"The plan as a whole seems to be the best within the realm of practical attainment and to give good promise of success, a result for which all devoutly pray."

"Touching on the prevalence of kidnapping, Judge Underwood said that the enactment of the recent federal law making this practice a crime should go a long way toward eliminating a 'disgrace to our civilization.'"

He added that the prohibition law should be enforced regardless of the action of various states which have voted for repeal. The law, he said, would be enforced as earnestly by his court now as it had ever been.

The grand jury was organized with J. Hope Tigner as foreman.

Commission Defers Freight Rate Probe

At the request of attorneys for the railroads, the Georgia public service commission Monday ordered a postponement until December 4 of its investigation into freight rates charged by the 44 roads operating in the state. The investigation was to have begun on October 30.

Chairman J. P. Wilhoit of the commission said that the delay also was needed by the board's rate department in order that it might be able to adequately present the evidence it has obtained.

MOSQUITO BITE FATAL TO COLLEGE PARK MAN

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon for W. L. Walker Jr., 32 years of age, of College Park, whose death early Monday resulted from blood poisoning caused by a mosquito bite.

Mr. Walker, who resided at 322 Temple street, was bitten on the right arm a week ago. The arm swelled and he was taken to a private hospital for treatment. His condition became worse and, notwithstanding a transfusion, for which his brother, Rufus, gave blood, it was necessary to amputate the arm. The operation was performed Sunday and Mr. Walker did not rally.

The Rev. W. S. Robinson and the Rev. D. W. Jones conducted the funeral service at the Bethany Methodist church. Interment was in the churchyard, with A. C. Hemperley in charge.

Surviving Mr. Walker are his wife; a son, William Robert Walker; another brother, John, and two sisters.

HOPKINS EQUIPMENT EXHIBIT IS POPULAR

The exhibit of the Hopkins Equipment Company in the liberal arts building at the Southeastern Fair, featuring its products, Norge electric refrigerators, Atwater Kent radios and Motorola radio equipment, is attracting wide attention, according to W. D. V. Hopkins, president.

Mr. Hopkins said that there had been a pronounced swing in public favor to Norge refrigerators whose simplicity and ease of operation, he said, pleases consumers.

He also called attention to the fact that the public not only demanded operation, but also beauty of design in its home products, all of which, he said, were attained in the three products distributed here and now on exhibition at the fair.

Plea of Murderer Puzzles Talmadge

Governor Eugene Talmadge was faced with a new and perplexing problem Monday. He had before him the case of James F. Barbee, of Pulaski county, who is under sentence to be electrocuted and also a letter signed by 11 of the 12 jurors who tried Barbee asserting that in the jury room they agreed to vote for conviction without a recommendation for mercy and to write a letter to the governor recommending commutation.

The governor does not yet have the actual appeal for commutation before him. Barbee's lawyer, Howard E. Coates, of Hawkinsville, has asked the governor to appoint a lunacy commission to examine Barbee, claiming that the condemned man is insane. Barbee shot and killed his son-in-law at Hawkinsville more than a year ago.

Jobless Railroad Man Found Hanged at Home

John Davis Williams, 62, an unemployed railroad man residing at 336 Josephine street, was found hanging from a rafter in a garage in rear of his residence late Monday by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Williams. Death resulted a few minutes after the man was lowered to the ground by A. W. Leathers, of 348 Josephine street, and his son, Willard Leathers.

Dr. Linton Smith, who was called to the scene, found Williams alive but he failed to respond to a stimulant. Funeral services will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the chapel of Awtry & Lowndes. Three ministers will conduct the services, the Rev. Wade H. Borge, the Rev. E. P. Carson, and the Rev. Charles Smith. The body will be taken to Cleveland, Tenn., at 7:05 o'clock Wednesday morning for interment.

Mrs. Williams told Police Captain A. J. Holcombe, who investigated, that her husband died suddenly but that he did not take his life. She said he had been ill, out of work and despondent. The coroner was notified.

N., C. & ST. L. PROTESTS RESTORATION OF TRAIN

Officials of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad conferred Monday with the Georgia public service commission regarding the petition of citizens for restoration of two trains between Chattanooga and Atlanta.

The commission recently ordered the trains restored but revoked the order when the railroad prepared to go into federal court with an injunction.

After the conference the commission said that it would hold the citizens' petition for restoration of the trains in abeyance for the time being. The railroad officials advised the commission both at the hearing on the petition and at the conference Monday that restoration of the trains would result in a financial loss which declining business at this time did not permit them to absorb.

How lovely ladies Turn back the Clock

PASSING years deal tenderly with the woman who seizes the benefits which an advancing world has brought her and turns them into youth—youth that laughs at time.

She no longer bows to middle age with humble helplessness. Old age for her stays indefinitely around a far-off corner. She is young and staying young, through the simple means of letting electric service perform the household tasks that once made women old in body, mind and appearance long before their time.

No phase of this new youthful era has done more to emancipate woman from drudgery than electric cookery—the clean, efficient, time-saving method that has banished from more than a million homes the back-breaking, wrinkle-bringing ordeal of preparing the family's meals on an outmoded stove.

The electric range is more than a superb tool in the woman's workshop; it is an outstanding symbol of woman's new privilege—the privilege of staying beautiful and young!

Woman's Auxiliary of Diocese Holds District Meet in Decatur

The Atlanta district of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Diocese of Atlanta met Tuesday at the Church of the Holy Trinity, Decatur. Mrs. J. F. Coleman, president of the Woman's Auxiliary of Holy Trinity opened the meeting with prayers. Mrs. William Perrin-Nicolson Sr., chairman of the Atlanta district, welcomed the women, and Mrs. A. H. Sterne, diocesan president of the auxiliary, presided.

Miss Bertha Duck, diocesan treasurer and representative to the summer conference held at the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., gave a resume of that conference. The theme running through the classes conducted at the conference by Miss Beardsley, of the national office of the women's auxiliary in New York, was, "We are an auxiliary first to the rector of each parish—in his work for the parish and the community—then to the bishop, and through him to the diocese—then to the province—and finally to the work of the entire church throughout the entire country and world."

Mrs. Stephen B. Ives, diocesan church periodical chairman and representative to the conference held at Kanuga, N. C., this summer, gave a resume of the work done there during the two-week period. Miss Lindley, the national secretary of the women's auxiliary, with headquarters in New York, spoke to the Kanuga conference, stressing the theme of study for the auxiliaries during the coming winter, "Christ in This Modern World," and the challenges each class will meet in such subjects as "The Church and Unemployment," "Communism," "International Relations," etc.

Mrs. J. H. Parker, of Brunswick, a member of the diocese of Georgia, brought a word of greeting from the sister diocese and told of the splendid work being done in the Brunswick district of auxiliaries. She told of the effort being made to consolidate all the working groups of women under one head with various special pieces undertaking some special piece of work—in this way overlapping of effort and work is avoided. She also told of the Retreat which will be held at Camp Reese, their diocesan camp on St. Simon's island, October 11 and 12.

Women will arrive at Camp Reese for supper on the evening of October 10. October 11 will be a quiet day of prayer and meditation, conducted by the Rev. William Johnson, of Aiken, S. C. October 12 will be given over to discussion of problems and to inspiring addresses. Miss Marjorie Weed, of Florida, daughter of the beloved late Bishop E. G. Weed, will be one of the principal speakers. There will be round-table discussions, led by Mrs. F. B. Scriven, president of the woman's auxiliary of the diocese of Georgia, on such subjects as the world economic problems—"Rethinking Missions"—and the cementing more firmly to a rural diocese of many scattered parishes.

Mrs. John MacDougald spoke of the work being done at the Appleton Church home in Macon, and requested members to get their fall boxes of clothing ready early to send to their small wards in the home. Mrs. A. H. Sterne presented to the auxiliary the girls from Agnes Scott who belong to the Episcopal church. Mrs. Sterne also brought a message from the conference at Sewanee, where she served as dean of women. She urged that the women put a "C" before the NRA—for unless this splendid movement is Christianized, it, too, will fall short of the goal toward which it is aiming. She spoke of the Day of Prayer on November 11. Women all over the country are pledging themselves to be in church for a 15-minute period of that day, making someone there the entire day—to pray for peace and the establishment of the Christian principals upon this earth.

Mrs. Sterne requested as many women as possible to attend the provincial synod meeting which will be held November 21-23 in Montgomery, Ala.

Miss Chadwick Is Superintendent Of Leonard Street Orphans' Home

By MRS. TURNER JONES.

On Leonard street, in the shadow of Spelman College chapel, a plain, substantial, well-built building stands. It is called Leonard Street Orphans' Home, and it shelters and protects 72 homeless colored children, who know it and love it as "home."

Visitors are always welcome in this home. The sign over its doorway says so, and the smiles of its superintendent, Miss Amy Chadwick, and her assistants, assure you again of the fact. The Leonard Street Orphans' Home, and it would be an inspiration to Chest subscribers to walk through its light, airy rooms, see the children's smiling, clean faces, and catch the fine, wholesome atmosphere of this real home for homeless children.

Surely there is a special appeal in working with children. You can see them grow and improve in the right environment. Leonard Street Orphans' Home provides this environment. In its daily routine, it teaches these girls, these citizens of the future, to lead clean, orderly, thoughtful lives. Its superintendent, Miss Amy Chadwick, a graduate of the Northfield Bible Training school, of Northfield, Mass., has headed this institution for 30 years. She took it when it was housed in an old army barracks, which had been used by Civil War soldiers when it had only one water faucet, which was in the back yard, and gave to it her courage and strength, her love, loyalty and fine character. She enlisted the aid of her friends, and in other parts of the country, and kept the spirit of her dream for a home for homeless colored children alive.

When the city condemned these army barracks in 1926, the Community Chest became interested in Leonard Street Orphans' Home and with the Chest bearing the current operating expenses, the home's board turned its efforts to erecting a new building. This new building stands today a silent testimony to the board's faith in negro education and workmanship. Its architect, W. J. Jones, and all of the workmen having been negroes. It would be a fine experience for any thoughtful person to look within the portals of Leonard Street Orphans' Home. Clean, healthy, sane-thinking people are necessities in a good community, and the home is making these daily for Atlanta. Citizenship is like the chain which is no stronger than its weakest link, so we cannot have weak links if we want a strong community. Here Leonard Street plays an important part, in taking those who could be burdens on a community, and training them from childhood to be self-supporting citizens.

MISS AMY CHADWICK.

ed. The girls, directed and aided by the teachers, have prepared and served this meal. Everyone is clean and neat, and the atmosphere is one of the home. They are receiving visitors. Are they Community Chest subscribers? Some, perhaps, but mostly they are Leonard Street Orphans' Home girls, returning to visit what they will always think of as "their home." These girls have grown forth from the shelter of Leonard Street to make their own ways in the world. They return to show Miss Chadwick and their former teachers their own families, with smiles they tell their children. "This was your mother's home." This is right! pride in their voices and on their faces. Some tell of their experiences as teachers in the public schools, their studies in Business College, their training in hospitals.

You stand and look into Miss Chadwick's eyes, into the smiling faces of the teachers, you glimpse the security that these "graduates" of the home feel, and you know you will always support a Chest which makes possible citizens like these.

Friendly Counsel BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD: My sister works hard all day in a store, then comes home and cooks for her family. Her husband has always appeared to love her and always helped her with anything that had to be done in the house. But for the last year he has been completely changed. He snaps her every time she opens her mouth. He eats his supper and goes immediately to bed. His job permits him to take time off during the day and he has been using this time to pay attention to a certain woman. Of course, he tells my sister that it is business that takes him away from the office. She believes implicitly everything he tells her. Now I know what is going on and I think my sister should know. As hard as she works she is entitled to know how he is spending his time and money. He has always been very fond of me, preferring me to any other member of our family. Would it be better for me to go straight talking with him or to go straight to my sister. I believe that if she knew what was going on she would get behind him and put a stop to his foolishness. WORRIED.

ANSWER: Spare your sister the disillusionment as long as possible. Have the warning talk to the brother-in-law yourself and tell him that you are aware of the mean and contemptible way in which he is behaving toward his wife. It is possible that the knowledge of being found out by you may bring him to his senses. But you should make it plain to him that if he persists in deceiving his wife and in mistreating her, you will have no alternative but to tell her how he is living.

While you have him on the grill you might call attention to the fact that your sister carries the heavy load in her marriage, working for her own livelihood, keeping boarders to supplement his and her income. If he has any manhood a review of this situation should shame him into giving up his licentious life. Of course, when he is no longer bounded by a sense of duty towards his wife and his innocent children, he will begin to treat her with the consideration and courtesy due her. One of the queerest quirks in human nature is this treacherous tendency of a guilty person to punish the innocent one against whom the sin is committed. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

By JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Stocks began the month and quarter with a spiritless market today. The downward trend which has recently characterized trading was again in evidence, but trading loafed along at the slowest pace in more than a month. Until the late dealings the range for the most leaders was narrow; toward the close losses widened and there were numerous net declines of 1 to 3 points. Wheat and corn finished lower.

With volume reduced to 950,810 shares, the smallest since August 15, it was apparent that even professional investors were in an indecisive mood.

Metals provided much of the turnover in stocks. American Telephone more than cancelled last Saturday's recovery, sinking 3 1/2 net. Such issues as American Steel, Bethlehem, American Can, Westinghouse, Du Pont, General Motors, Chrysler, Sears-Roebuck, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific and American Tobacco "B" were set back about 1 to 2.

Heaviness of the dollar, viewed by many as a reflection of further foreign speculative selling which may have been prompted by continued advance in high quarters here as this country's monetary plans, and exchange quotations on the gold currencies of Europe represented rather substantial gains from last week-end, but these were subsequently reduced during the market hours. French government bonds jumped to new highs in brisk trading.

War debt discussions will soon be assuming a prominent place in the news dispatches. Some observers think that dollar stabilization could hardly be attempted while this issue is hanging fire; they also would be surprised if dollar matters were taken up with the debt question.

The Standard Statistics-Associated Press composite for stocks today was 70.4, or 1.1 point under the July low from which level the market rallied last week. Thus the market again reached a position where it immediately action will be closely watched.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(P)—Aside from strength displayed by some foreign issues, the bond market was a dull and highly irregular affair today, with the price trend generally pointing lower.

Sales totaled only $7,896,000, par value, the smallest aggregate for a full session since December 5, last year. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans sagged three-tenths of a point.

The demand for various European government and municipal maturities was attributed partly to heaviness of the dollar in terms of the standard currencies. French 7s and 7-1/2s sagged 6 and 4-3/4 points, respectively, to new historical highs. Loans of Dutch East India Rine, Westphalian, Berlin and Great Britain also advanced 1-2 to 2 or more.

United States government securities, on the other hand, were again somewhat easier, although there was no special liquidation in this division.

In the mulling movement of corporation groups, some prime investment loans, as well as a few second issues, seemed to exhibit resistance.

Issues of Portland General Electric, Tobacco Products, Lackawanna Steel and a number of others were a trifle heavy.

The majority of the carriers suffered minor losses.

Living and Loving

BY VIRGINIA LEE.

I am so glad that Peggy's letter to me is being answered through our kind young readers of Peggy's own age. Peggy, you remember, is the little crippled girl who wrote such a lovely, wise little letter a while back. Her problem was that she wanted to go to college, but her physician discouraged her quite cruelly and unnecessarily, I thought.

Here is another letter which should make her feel encouraged to go on with her education, in spite of the doctor's opinion.

"Dear Virginia Lee: In reference to a poem and letter by 'Peggy,' I would like to tell the following: Some years ago I sat beside a little crippled girl while attending university classes. She had a very noticeable deformity, but everyone seemed to like her and she was a successful student.

"She later was employed as a high school teacher. At one time the picture of a very successful and dramatic society appeared in a daily paper, and I was very pleased to see that my little deformed classmate of former days was among its members.

"Like you, I feel that Peggy's doctor is a very peculiar person. Has he a deformed mind? Of the two, Peggy and her doctor, I should consider Peggy by far the more normal.

"As an interested reader of your column, Virginia Lee, I wish you much success in your work, A. V."

Thank you very much for your encouraging letter on behalf of both Peggy and myself.

I feel sure that anyone with Peggy's pluck will profit by college and make a success of life, in spite of handicaps, just as your little classmate did.

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am a girl of 17 and live with my grandmother, and being shy and self-conscious in the presence of boys, I never went with a boy until this last year.

"I met a boy of 20 and have been going steady with him one night a week, as that is all my grandmother allows, although I can go out with boys in the daytime.

"Grandmother thinks I'm still a child, and, of course, she objects to him, saying he is almost old enough to be my father.

"I love him dearly and he loves me. We both are interested in the same things and we never quarrel. I don't think I could ever break up with him. We have talked marriage, and I'm sure I would accept it if it weren't for grandmother. What shall I do?"

"PERFECTED."

Thank your lucky stars for a good grandmother, my I! It may be that this young man is just the one for you and that he never will change toward him, but it will be well to wait a while until you are less a child in years.

When you are a woman of 40, my dear, you will look back upon the time you were 17 and wonder what a baby you were then. Your grandmother is good to allow you one night out a week, and let you go with boys in the daytime. Try to appreciate her, my dear. It is not always easy for an older woman to have a young girl to look after, and they often make the mistake of being too severe.

Just wait awhile. That is the best thing to do, and if in a year or two, you still love your friend as you do now, maybe he really is the one for you and will make up happier than someone nearer your age.

FORECASTS INCREASE

VOLUME OF ADS

Henry Eckhardt, president of Kenyon & Eckhardt, Inc., national advertising agency, predicted at a dinner of the organization Monday evening at the Hotel St. Regis, New York, that advertising schedules would show the most decided increase for years during the next six months.

He asserted that leading national advertisers are convinced that NRA codes are clearing the way for a more reasonable, more profitable, more constructive competition, and that intelligent advertising on a broad scale will be the manufacturer's first-line selling device in this new competition.

"We have already seen substantial expansion in general advertising," he said, "and I believe this will continue. Also, the rapidly with which economic changes are taking place makes it almost imperative to increase the volume of advertising, to keep abreast of the changing consumer market."

The fourth birthday anniversary of the agency, formed by Mr. Eckhardt and Kenyon in 1929, with resulting expansion each year since, was also celebrated. Current volume placed by the agency is the largest in its history.

Market Outlook

By MAX BUCKINGHAM

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(UP)—There was a confused picture before the stock market trader tonight. Prices have reached the point where many investors are confused and confused by the confusion.

Averages are down considerably, but at a low since May. Some business reports are improving.

But prices continue to slip down with very few anxious to enter the arena with cash or credit.

Trading was at the lowest pace since August 13. There was no indication of a rout at any time but the close prices were down 4 points. Greatest weakness came in the higher priced shares which have enjoyed smart upswings in recent bull movements.

ATKINS ON T. T. & Co. was the focal point for attack, running its recent loss down 3-1/2 points more. There were many reports of a dividend cut from $5 to $3 might come at the next meeting. But the big traders who generally know—particularly those who operate in the money market—were completely out of the market. Some adverse public service action was rumored and promptly discounted.

And then to add to the strange position was the fact that one of the big floor operators who helped control the drive on this stock last week was buying telephone in small amounts today.

Some announcement on a monetary policy would stimulate the market. The London rumor, fairly well covered off two weeks ago, suddenly began to warm up again today. They said some form of inflation—either only a speeding up of the government public works program—was necessary to make industry hit the strides it is supposed to hit under the NRA program. And inflation, of course, would mean a spurt in stock prices.

But the cotton traders took another view. Some of the brokers in this group predicted that a stabilized currency would come in and would be considered a bullish sign by most. They said cotton was a good buy now, pointing out that consumption of cotton in the United States was high with one manufacturer claiming it was the best for this time of year for 1935.

WALL STREET Gossip.

Advices from some groups that railway equipment issues might be good buys now with some emphasis placed on the fact that the government is report there were scale-down orders for U. S. Steel to 40. Some believe that Consolidated Oil had not picked up as well as other oil issues although its position is good. Hiram Walker's good position if released is permitted with 14,000,000 gallons of whisky ready to send out plus 18 times as much sweet clover as they were 15 years ago.

Gold Price Higher.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(P)—Today's newly-mined gold price was announced by the treasury as $31.88, an increase of 42 cents an ounce as compared with Saturday's quotation.

Culbertson on Contract

Adopting the Best Alternative.

By ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Writers and teachers of Bridge constantly emphasize the necessity of making a sound plan of play as soon as the opening lead is made and the Dummy is spread on the table. It is quite true that often at this very moment the Declarer is confronted with alternative lines of play, one line leading to defeat and the other to victory. It requires a nice weighing of alternatives to determine in such cases the line that should be followed.

A few days ago at one of the Bridge Clubs I saw a hand bid to a Small Slam contract and made by the Declarer adopting the best method of attack available, retaining as it did the elements of safety that other lines of play did not offer.

The hand was:

NANCY PAGE

Barbara Frietche Makes a Fine Quilt

BY FLORENCE LA GANKE.

"We are going patriotic these days. Not long ago I gave you a Pershing quilt. Soon I shall have a Dewey pattern for you and today I offer a Barbara Frietche. This pattern was sent to me by Mrs. Atchinson, of Houston, Texas. She says that the original of this pattern was made by Barbara Frietche."

The quilt club members had clipped the picture from the paper and pasted it together with the directions, in the Nancy Page quilt club scrapbook. Then they sent for the full-size pattern of a block.

They noted that no seams were allowed in the full-size pattern. This meant they added one-quarter inch on all sides when cutting the pieces. The pieces were cut from fine, colorfast material. The seams were taken one-quarter inch deep and were started in one-quarter inch from ends and sides. By doing this the material was not bunched in the center of a group of pieces.

The members used No. 60 thread for piecing. They bound the finished quilt in the same shade of blue as the pieces. The binding was cut one-half inch wide and was started in one-quarter inch from ends and sides. By doing this the material was not bunched in the center of a group of pieces.

The actual pattern for "Barbara Frietche" Quilt Design may be obtained by sending three cents and a self-addressed stamped envelope to Nancy Page, care of The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Back patterns may be secured by sending an additional three cents for each pattern requested.

ALLEGED ACCOUNT OF INSULT CLOSED

Order Blocks Withdrawal from Reputed Cache of $1,000,000.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Federal Judge John P. Barnes issued a temporary restraining order today preventing Samuel Insull or any representative from withdrawing money from an alleged million dollar fund deposited secretly in the Harris Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago before Insull fled to Greece.

The order was issued on petition of attorneys for Gus Lowry, of Sullivan, Ind., holder of $8,000 debentures of the bankrupt Insull Utility Investment Co., Inc.

The complaint charged that Insull placed $1,000,000 in securities and gold bullion in safe keeping with the Harris bank, under the fictitious name of Constantine S. Effax, and that the money would be drawn for defense funds. Insull, now fighting against extradition from Athens on the charge of fraudulent transfer of assets in anticipation of bankruptcy, would have state charges of embezzlement and larceny and federal charges of fraudulent use of the mails to face if he were returned here.

Judge Barnes issued the temporary restraining order immediately upon hearing the petition. Lowry's counsel explained they wished to serve the Harris bank before withdrawal could be made this morning. The court ordered the fund impounded for possible distribution among Insull's creditors after a full investigation.

POSSESSION OF ACCOUNT.

ATHENS, Oct. 2.—Samuel Insull branded as "absolute rubbish" a report here today that he had been said to possess a secret bank account, for Insull is in Athens, Greece.

"No such luck," he laughed, adding, however, that the sum mentioned would be "most welcome" under present circumstances.

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 2.—(AP) Senator Huey P. Long today filed exception of no cause or right of action to the $500,000 character defamation damage suit filed against him by Mrs. Anne Ector Pleasant, wife of former Governor Ruffin G. There's a new day in view.
There is gold in the blue.
There is hope in the hearts of men.

All the world's on the way
To a sunnier day
'Cause the road is open again.

There's a note of repair,
There's a song in the air.
It's the music of busy men.

Every plow in the land
Meets a happier hand
'Cause the road is open again.

There's an Eagle Blue
In the White House, too,
On the shoulder of our President there.

With a lusty call
Telling one and all—
Brother, Do Your Share!

There's a new day in view.
There is gold in the blue.
There is hope in the hearts of men.

From the plain to the hill
From the farm to the mill
All the road is open again.
